BRIDE TRIES SUICIDE BY BULLET

Springfield, May 25.—Mrs. Lillian Young Robbins, a bride of twenty-two, is in a critical condition at the Wesson Memorial Hospital with a bullet in her left breast.

According to her husband, Louis Robbins, the wound was self-inflicted.

He told the police that he went to a theatre last night, and returned about 10:30. At 11 o'clock Mrs. Robbins returned, and he learned she had also attended the theatre, with another party.

At one o'clock this morning, Robbins said, he was awakened by a shot. He rushed into the next room and found his wife on the floor. She had taken his automatic pistol and fired one shot into her body. Robbins immediately called up the hospital. It was not until several hours later that the police were notified.

The Robbins have been married since last August.

BEAUVAIS SPURNS BRIBE

Guide Refuses Offer of $250,000 to Testify Against Mrs. Stillman

Montreal, May 25. (Copyright, 1923, I. N. S.).—Fred Beauvais, Canadian guide, who was named co-respondent in the divorce action brought by James A. Stillman, New York multi-millionaire banker, revealed today that he had spurned an offer of $250,000 to give testimony damaging to Mrs. Stillman.

Beauvais showed an affidavit sworn to in Montreal by a New York city stock broker, stating that the signer of the document had offered Beauvais $250,000 for information damaging to Mrs. Stillman and favorable to her banker-husband.

"That stock broker has been a close friend of mine ever since on account of my refusal to accept that money," said Beauvais. "And yet they say that I hold three letters for $15,000. Does anyone think I would be fool enough to turn down $250,000 and accept $15,000?"

In showing the affidavit, Beauvais allowed only part of the contents to

SEIZE RUM AND 4 MEN ON BOAT

Coast Guard Cutter Overhauls Vessel in Flames, Takes Off Liquor

New Bedford, May 25.—The U. S. coast guard cutter Acushnet came in today with four rum-runners as prisoners and a hundred cases of whiskey on board.

This represented only one-seventh part of the whiskey being transported along Rum Row, off Montauk, L. I. Six hundred other cases went to the bottom after the motorboat—the Linwood of Providence—caught fire.

The contrabrand cargo of the motorboat was worth $56,000.

The Acushnet was plying along the three-mile limit when two motorboats were spotted lying low in the water and proceeding slowly. It was evident they were heavily loaded.

As the coast guard cutter started for the motorboats one of them burst into flames. While the United States cutter steered fo rthe burning boat, the other one got away.

½½½ A life boat was lowered, and the four members of the crew of the motor boat—all Providence men—were rescued. They told the officers of the Acushnet that there were 200 gallons of gasoline aboard.

When a hundred cases of booze had been transferred it was thought unsafe to linger, in view of the danger of an explosion. A rope was tied to the motor boat, and she was towed along at such a speed that the fire was put out by rushing spray.

A count showed that six hundred cases had gone overboard.

FALL RIVER LINER CALLS AID; SHIP DISABLED IN SOUND; PASSENGERS IN NO PERIL

New York, May 25.—The Fall River line passenger steamer Commonwealth, bound for Boston, today sent out a radio message saying she had been disabled by engine trouble off North Brother's Island, in Long Island Sound. The municipal steamer Riverside started at once to her side, with instructions to bring her passengers back here.

Officials of the line declared the injury to the ship was slight, consisting merely of a broken radius rod on one of the paddlewheels. Repairs were being made, it was stated, and the ship was expected to proceed to Boston after a brief delay.

Only passengers who were in a hurry were taken off, it was said.

12-HOUR DAY MUST STAND STEEL PROBERS INSIST

New York, May 25 (AP).—The committee of the Iron and Steel Institute appointed recently to investigate the feasibility of abandoning the twelve-hour day in the steel industry, reported today through Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, that it could not at this time recommend such a step.

RUNAWAY THROWS GIRL STUDENT IN BROOKLINE

Miss Lucy Sikowsky of Haverhill, N. H., a medical student living at No. 160 Aspinwall avenue, Brookline, was thrown from her horse in front of Brookline Town Hall today after a mad gallop from Harvard square, Brookline. She escaped with minor injuries.

The horse became frightened when the girl and Miss Helen Chapin were riding through the square. Miss Sikowsky clung to the reins as the animal tore in and out among automobiles until she lost her hold and was thrown.

Patrolman Manley caught the horse while other officers assisted the girl in the station and arranged for her removal to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, where it was found she had suffered abrasions of the right ankle and knee.

HUNT AARON AS GEM THIEF

Man Who Vanished From the Parker House Accused of Stealing $13,150 Jewels.

Sudden impetus was given to the search for F. Milton Aaron, of Englewood, N. J., who disappeared from the Parker House early this month under strange circumstances.

The new interest in the missing man came as the result of a visit to the office of Chief Inspector McGarr by Leon Chenaud, a jeweler of Union Hill, N. J.

Chanaud told Inspector McGarr that today the Grand Jury of Hudson County, New Jersey would report on his request for an indictment of Aaron, on a charge of procuring merchandise under false pretenses. Chanaud furnished the merchandise, he says. It consisted of:

WORTH $13,150.

Two diamond bracelets, set in platinum; one had 37 quarter-karat diamonds in it, the other was set with diamonds and sapphires.

Four diamond brooches, set in platinum.

The jewels are worth $13,150, Chanaud says. This is his story:

"This man Aaron was known in Englewood as the Major. Where

The man who but a short time ago was acclaimed whenever his pictures were shown and who, since Miss MacCauley made her allegations against him, has refused to make a picture, stands now before the world vindicated.

Miss MacCauley, who is a middle-aged Brookline woman and a Wellesley graduate, today made one of the most remarkable confessions ever heard.

SEARCH FOR MYSTERIOUS MR. AARON RENEWED

he got the title I don't know. He used to talk about a connection with Camp Merritt, in New Jersey. The army authorities don't know anything about him.

"He came to Englewood about six years ago. He spoke broken English then and wore a beard that reached below his chin. He said he was a sick soldier, and got permission to [illegible] in a tent. He lived there for some time and began to show remarkable changes.

GAVE HIM THE GEMS.

"His beard came off. His accent [illegible] less broken. He stopped telling folks he was a soldier, and told [illegible] as a broker. One day I met him in New York, and he told me he was in the market for some diamonds. I sold him $4,000 worth. He paid cash.

"A little later he said he wanted more diamonds. I showed him a lot which were worth $10,000. He asked if he might have them appraised. I had investigated and found that by this time Mr. Aaron had risen in the world somewhat. He had a $20,000 house in Englewood, and I thought it would be all right to let him take the diamonds home.

"He took them and returned them later, saying they were not just what he wanted. If his purpose was to inspire confidence, he succeeded. When he came and looked at the second batch of diamonds, worth over $13,000 he had my confidence fully.

"This was on May 5. I let him take the diamonds home to be appraised.

AARON VANISHES

"The next day I got a phone call from him. He said he was going to Boston on business. He didn't want to leave the diamonds in his vault during his absence—didn't want to take the responsibility. Would I meet him at the Grand Central Terminal at train time? He would then turn the diamonds over to me.

"I met him at the terminal. The train was ready to leave. I went through every car. No trace of Aaron. Even then I had no suspicion. I knew I would hear from him.

"I did. The next morning I got a wire from him in which he explained he had caught the train at the Harlem station.

"Next thing I knew I read of the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Aaron from the Parker House in Boston. I began to investigate. I found out his trip to Boston was for the purpose of meeting a Mr. Joyce, a jeweler of North Attleboro.

"What for? I asked myself. Why should he have an appointment with a jeweler when he had my diamonds.

"Then I found out that his $20,000 Englewood home was in Mrs. Aaron's name.

"Then I made up my mind all was not well."

WIFE UNCONCERNED.

Mrs. Florence Aaron, wife of the missing man, accompanied him to Boston. She displayed a strange lack of interest in her husband's disappearance. When he was reported missing she promptly paid the bill and departed for Englewood.

When she arrived she got into touch with Chanaud and told him her husband was gone. She said she feared he had probably been held up.

Description of Aaron and the clothing he wore when last seen is as follows:

Age, forty-two; height, 5 feet 4 inches; light complexion, black mustache. Looks like German Jew. Wears tortoise shell glasses.

Clothing—Black suit with white pencil stripe, light brown overcoat, tan shoes, black derby hat, black bow tie, light colored silk shirt.

DENIES ATTACKING UXBRIDGE STUDENTS

Uxbridge, May 25.—Lester G. Taft, a local editor, has denied to the school committee interviews credited to him to the effect there was immorality among high school students who made a recent trip to Washington. Taft asserted he had made an investigation which failed to reveal any evidence of impropriety or of "parking of corsets" by the girls or of visiting a burlesque show instead of Grant's tomb.

TRAIN ACCIDENT DELAYS HUNDREDS

Several hundred passengers were delayed for nearly an hour by the made-up Haverhill train due to leave at 4:54 p. m. standard time, crashing into the bumpers on track No. 9 as the nine empty cars were backed into the North Station from the yard.

The third car from the rear and the combined smoker and baggage next to the engine were damaged. No one was injured.

SPECIAL JURY TO HANDLE WARD CASE

to be the subject of extended litigation, a prospect which developed when counsel for Ward obstructed the State's plans to procure certain [illegible], is one of the primary reasons for this summary action, it was learned today.

"Without in any way indicating my belief in the guilt or innocence of Walter S. Ward," said Mr. Sherman in his recommendation, "I believe that sufficient grounds exist for the submission of all available facts to a grand jury, with a view toward procuring an indictment charging Walter S. Ward with such an offense as the facts would warrant.

"The perpetrator of the homicidal act ought to have his conduct submitted to a court and jury, unless the facts so undisputably point to a justifiable homicide as to make such action unnecessary. A conclusion of justifiable homicide here is entirely lacking.

"In the course of the investigation the State sought to procure for examination divers records and other testimony more or less under hostile control.

"I regard such records as highly important. But certain doubt as to the validity of the so-called Peace and Safety Act and as to the power of the Attorney-General to enforce process thereunder has resulted in such records being unavailable to the State by virtue of litigation now pending in the courts.

"It is possible this litigation might not be determined for some time to come. The process before the Grand Jury being more potent, is an added reason for my belief that a Grand Jury should be empannelled."

Ward was indicted by a Westchester Grand Jury, but the indictment was dismissed for lack of prosecution.

Up, Instead of Down
We Like Strange Things
Our Filipino Gift
Busy Socialists

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

SOMETHING HAPPENED in the stock market yesterday, and this morning bears are sad. No particular good news, yet stocks suddenly changed their mind and went up, instead of down.

It is always dangerous to sell this country short, as Morgan said. It is also dangerous to "go long" just at present. The wise man invests, but doesn't gamble. As one wise advertiser says, there is a great difference between making a fortune and building a fortune.

STRANGE THINGS interest us more than things important. This will interest many: Chloroform is used to hurry the blooming of roses. When they have been chloroformed, rose plants think they have gone through a Winter's sleep and start producing buds and flowers again. Plants, like the animals, are our humble brothers and sisters. They suffer and enjoy as we do, to a less extent.

AS YOU READ of roses influenced by drugs, you also read the grand jury's report of the Philadelphia penitentiary. "A disgrace to the city and State," the grand jury calls it. In that prison the drug business is well organized. So is the making of whiskey within the prison. Chloroform makes the rose think it has been asleep. Miserable human beings long for the imitation sleep that drugs bring.

Mrs. Medill McCormick, wife of the Senator, daughter of Mark Hanna, is the inventor of the chloroformed rose idea. That will also interest you.

IF THE FILIPINOS break loose from the United States, they will take some good things with them.

In the Philippine Islands are 8,174 schools, including 7,641 public schools, established by this country. The rest are schools maintained at private expense. The Catholics, as usual, provide most of them, 77 per cent. against 8 per cent. Protestant, the rest secular.

One million, ninety-four thousand, four hundred and seventy-two young Filipinos attend the public schools, taught by 24,975 teachers. All that means progress.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS demand that workmen be paid in gold, as the mark drops below Polish money in pursuit of its little friend, the ruble.

Socialists will have to be content with something else. Germany might as well try to pay a German workman in pink-eyed unicorns as in gold. There isn't any. We have it.

TWO OF the ablest American Socialists, Hillquit of New York and Representative Berger of Milwaukee, attending the Socialist convention in Germany, are, as Mr. Dorgan would put it, "as busy as a one-eyed dog in a sausage shop."

Once they had nothing to attack and defeat but Karl Marx's old enemy "capital." Now they must hold back the Communists, while they decide how capital can be pulled down.

ON THEIR European travels Messrs. Berger and Hillquit will not go to Russia, for that nation, which professes to adore Karl Marx, would probably put both of them in jail.

Old "capital" finds his comfort in the fact that where a few of his enemies are gathered together they always begin by fighting each other, and end by hating each other much more than they hate him.

HUNGER IS A DICTATOR that will be obeyed. While the Allies are wondering what they can carve out of Germany, hunger is stirring up red revolution. German police are shot by German workmen at Essen. And that German question may be settled by an imitation of the Russian situation—which would mean that the amount of future reparations "in gold" would be exactly zero.

RED BANDS 'MARCHING ON ESSEN'

Germany Asks Permission to Send Police to Combat Communists

London, May 25 (AP).—The German government is alarmed at reports that armed Communist bands are marching on Essen, says a Central News dispatch from Berlin.

It has asked permission of the French authorities to send forces of German police from the occupied districts to Essen and Gelsenkirchen.

Essen, May 25 (AP).—The strike in the Ruhr inaugurated by the Communists is gaining in numbers and now includes thousands of iron and steel workers, in addition to the miners previously out. The latest to join were 20,000 employes of the steel works at Remscheid, near Elberfeld, whose demand for a fifty per cent. increase in pay was refused.

It is estimated that 50,000 miners are striking in the Gelsenkirchen district.

The Communist Commission of Control today was still holding the police headquarters at Gelsenkirchen which it seized early yesterday.

Negotiations are continuing among the burgomasters and the French authorities for the establishment of a workers' police force.

$45,000 Alimony for Actress Wife of $16,000,000 Heir

Chicago, May 25. — Circuit Judge Ryner indicated that he would grant a decree of divorce to Mrs. Helen Marie Patterson Heyworth, the New York actress wife of Otto Young Heyworth, one of the heirs to the $16,000,000 estate of his grandfather, Ott Young, a pioneer Chicagoan. A trust agreement presented in court and signed by the principals provides that Mrs. Heyworth shall receive alimony of $45,000, payable in a lump sum.

Mrs. Heyworth testified her husband deserted her in 1920, one year after marriage.

WANT TO PICK THEIR OWN GRAVESTONES

The free and independent resident of wealthy Brookline demands the right to pick his own gravestone—or have his family pick it.

He—or she—objects to the trustees of Walnut Hill Cemetery, owned by the town, having much of a say-so on the subject.

Wherefore a petition is being circulated for signatures against the trustees' order that all single graves shall be marked with slate gravestones only.

The petition calls it discrimination.

The trustees voted in 1920, by a three-to-two ballot, for the slate requirement for single grave headstones.

THEIR OBJECTION.

Objection was heard. Question was asked: "Why not marble or granite or other suitable stone, if the owner of a single grave desires?"

Hearing was given some months ago. But only three persons appeared, two undertakers and a grave owner. It happened there was another hearing—an ecclesiastical one—the same day, which may have drawn from the grave-stone hearing. Anyhow, the slate order stood.

Now, by petition, the matter is being agitated again. The petition is headed by Leonard C. Seagrave. It calls attention to the point that, out of 662 single graves, as per the town report; only two have slate stones, indicating a popular choice for other stones.

"CHEAPER, LOOKS BETTER."

The reason given by the trustees was that slate is cheaper and looks bitter.

The petitioners recite that they take this method now "objections to what is seemingly an dnwarranted discrimination against grave lot owners having been made to the trustees thus far in vain."

The petitioners feel that the public—Walnut Hill being a town-owned cemetery—should have power to select theirk own grave-stones and that any such order as this one should be approved by the voters before being put in effect.

POOR FACILITIES STOP OKLA. OIL WELLS

Tulsa, Okla, May 25—Drilling in the famous Burbank oil pool of Oklahoma slowed down today under an agreement of eleven of the fourteen producing companies in the field. It was agreed to close down drilling on 279 wells. Inability of the operators to market production because of inadequate pipe line and storage facilities, was said to have influenced the shutdown.

GOVERNORS ACT ON R. R. VALUES

Governors of Eight States and 29 Congressmen Gather in Chicago

Chicago, May 25.—A public conference fathered by progressive Congressmen, headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin opened here today to crystallize public sentiment against the reported proposal of the Interstate Commerce Commission to allow railroads of the country a combined valuation of $23,000,000,000.

The commission has been at work on the matter for ten years. Three years ago it announced a tentative valuation of $18,000,000,000. Should the $23,000,000,000 valuation be placed, the Progressives contend, it will cost the American people $1,500,000,000 annually as a result of excessive freight and passenger rates.

Foremost among those who are expected to attend the meeting are the Governors of eight States, four United States Senators, twenty-five Congressmen, representatives of a number of public interests, heads of practically all railroad unions, William Jennings Bryan, Mayor Hylan of New York and Mayor Nelson of St. Paul.

In a statement on his arrival here Mayor Hylan said the roads, actually worth but $13,000,000,000, saw they were going to "get away with something easy and hurried to the commission with the demand that the valuation be increased from $18,000,000,000 to $23,000,000,000."

Donald R. Richberg, counsel for the shop crafts during their strike last year, supplemented Mayor Hylan's remarks with the statement that railroad rates would be increased $550,000,000 annually if the $23,000,000,000 valuation is allowed the roads.

DEBS' BONUS CLAIMS INSULT, TEXANS SAY

Austin, Tex., May 25.—Declarations of Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, reported to have been made in New York, that he is a "casualty of the World War" and "entitled to an ex-service man's bonus," were condemned as an "insult to ex-service men of America" in a resolution adopted by the Texas House of Representatives by a vote of 99 to 1.

Montgomery, Ala. — Resolutions calling on Governor Brandon and the Alabama legislature to put an end to the State convict lease system, were adopted at the final session of the convention of the Alabama League of Women Voters.

SELECTED CLOTHES FOR MARRIED MAN

MISS M. MOORE SCRUGGS.

WILLIAM JACKSON.

"Don't help your friend to select his clothes, girls, you may have to pay for them."

This is a bit of advice given by Miss M. Moore Scruggs, a mannikin, who must pay $225 to William Jackson, a West street tailor, for two suits of clothes which he made for C. B. Pierce, her "gentleman friend."

Judge Brackett of the Municipal Court found for Jackson, who is known as "the best dressed man in Boston," on the evidence of his books, which charged the suits to Miss Scruggs and showed Pierce's name merely for measurements.

Miss Scruggs stated that a girl didn't necessarily have to know a man intimately to help him select his suits.

The mannikin lives at No. 60 Fenway Suite 57, where she keeps a colored maid and runs a Stutz car. She pays $125 a month rent.

Pierce, who is now in California, and for whom the suits were made, is a married man and when in Boston lived at No. 1 Waterhouse street, Cambridge. He has been a friend of the model for three years, during which time he paid considerable attention to her, according to Miss Scruggs' testimony.

"I knew he was married, but what of it?" she asked.

POINCARE IS VICTOR IN CRISIS

Threat to Resign Wins Him Fight to Force Trial of French Communists

Paris, May 25 (A. P.)—Thursday's ministerial crisis ended as quickly as it arose; to be exact, it lasted a half hour.

The Senate will take the first opportunity of giving unequivocal indorsement to M. Poincare's general policy and the premier on his part will insist that this endorsement cover his action in repressing Communist activities.

Marcel Cachin and the other defendants charged with illegal plots against the State are to be tried by the Assize Court as soon as the examining magistrate has prepared the case.

Premier Poincare's position remains unchanged, for he will undoubtedly get another vote of confidence in the Senate and probably in the Chamber of Deputies also.

The person who comes out of the crisis most advantageously is President Millerand, whose reputation for "horse sense" has been greatly enhanced by the energy and decision with which he handled the incident.

The crisis arose as soon as Premier Poincare had been informed that the Senate had decided that it was not competent to try the Communists as a high court. A few minutes later M. Poincare was at Elysee Palace with the resignation of the cabinet.

5-CENT FARE FOR CHILDREN ASKED

The State Senate adopted an order, offered by Senator John W. McCormack of Dorchester, requesting the trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway to establish a five-cent fare for children on all of its lines during July and August.

TWO-GUN BILL HART VINDICATED

she has alleged Hart was the father of is in reality not his child.

She confessed that "Rupert Leigh," the baby which she had exhibited to District Attorney Woolwine of Los Angeles as her son, was not even her own child.

She confessed that the baby was in reality the child of another woman—Mrs. Lucy Webb, who lives in a Boston suburb.

She confessed that the whole idea of trying to foist a child on Hart was in reality only a figment of a woman's tremendous efforts to win a man's heart.

She confessed that insofar as her being a mother of any child whatsoever by William S. Hart is concerned, that child has been only the child of her active imagination, and that, after all, the infant which has been put forth as the baby of the screen hero, is only a phantom of her brain.

It was no easy task to get Miss MacCauley to make this amazing confession, which will interest the entire civilized world, because the pictures of Hart and the charges against him, are known throughout the civilized world.

For hour after hour, during practically two full days of questioning, Miss MacCauley stuck to her original story.

Even when confronted with indisputable proof, which is in the possession of the American, she clung tenaciously to the story that Hart was the father and she was the mother of poor little Rupert Leigh.

CONFESSES AT LAST

It was only after it seemed absolutely hopeless to get Miss MacCauley to admit that the American's evidence was correct that she finally broke down and confessed.

And then it became apparent that the whole story she had told about Hart was nothing more nor less than one of the most amazing cases of a woman's imagination that has ever been known—that it was only a case of what the psychologists call "wish fulfillment," and that in her adoration and hero worship of "Bill" Hart, her own mind had supplied her with the baby that she wanted to be that of Hart.

Apparently having once convinced herself that Hart was, or should be, the father of a baby of her's, the next steps were to secure a baby and put forth the spurious infant as the child of her love. And this she did with all the remarkable trickery that the human mind is capable of.

In her mind, apparently, the child had been her's, and "Bill" Hart's until today, and she has gone through all the developments of worries, and pains of birth, infancy and childhood.

Today it was only when she was confronted with the last bit of evidence in the possession of the American that she collapsed in tears and cried out:

"It is true that I never bore a child to Mr. Hart. I have got myself into a terrible mess. I never wanted to hurt 'Bill' Hart. I never dreamed this would become public, and I have a reason, THERE IS A REASON.

"It might not mean much to you, but it means everything to me. He would not see me and I wanted to force him to see me. That is the reason. There was a misunderstanding."

The tears flowed down her cheeks. After a few minutes she composed herself and continued.

"He was determined not to see me and I was determined that he would. IT WAS A BATTLE OF WITS."

Miss MacCauley is over forty, with hair that has been grey since she was twenty-six. She is of typical English appearance due to her ruddy complexion and athletic build. As she talks, her crisp speech affected by her sojourns in England, heightens her English impression.

BOY WAS WEBB CHILD

The story reveals that the spurious child taken to Los Angeles by Miss MacCauley, December 6, 1918, was Robert John Webb, son of Lucy Webb, now Lucy Furigo, who lives in a town near Boston.

For reasons of her own, to be revealed later by this newspaper, Miss MacCauley called him "Rupert Leigh."

This ultra interjectural woman faced Hart in the office of District Attorney Woolwine in 1917 after she demanded that Hart admit paternity of this child, which she declared was the result of a love affair at the Rex Arms apartment of

It was but recently that this dramatic scene became public as a result of Hart's separation from his wife, Winifred Westover, herself a movie star until she married "Silent Bill" and retired.

This phase is only one of the absorbing factors to be later revealed by this newspaper in subsequent installments.

Miss MacCauley first denied that she ever knew Hart when the news from the coast reached her. Frantically she tried to keep her secret.

It was beyond the understanding of this unusual and intellectual woman that the skeleton, for six years hidden in her closet, should blaze forth in print.

TALKED VAGUELY

To maintain the sham, she now says, she talked vaguely of the boy. Not an incident of the baby's life did she speak of, nor a picture did she show, and under no circumstance would she reveal his whereabouts, lest "Two-Gun" Bill should "kidnap her little darling."

The story was temporarily forgotten after it had run its course.

And one more movie hero, who had a hitherto spotless reputation, was besmirched as a result of a scandal that swept from coast to coast during the months of March and April last.

It was at this juncture that a relentless investigation was begun by this newspaper. The record that Elizabeth MacCauley signed in Los Angeles, in order to obtain the $50 a month financial support of her alleged child in February, 1917, was procured. In this document, it is learned that not a single statement was true.

The record said that Jane Doe had given birth to a male child in the New York Infirmary, New York City, September 3, 1917. Elizabeth MacCauley declared that she was that Jane Doe, and that a man by the name of McGreen was the attending physician.

FICTITIOUS NAME

Of course, Jane Doe was the fictitious name that could have been used. At the hospital the investigation disclosed that no one with a fictitious name was ever admitted there. For, in case of death, they wished to be as certain as possible that they would know who a patient was, so that relatives could be notified. Especially a husband of a woman who was going to give birth to a child should be in readiness to hear the outcome.

Second—No woman had given birth to a male child for two weeks before, and for two weeks after the date of September 3, 1917.

Third—No physician had ever been connected with the institution by the name of McGreen.

Next the trail led to Brookline. It was discovered through neighbors that Elizabeth MacCauley was in a normal physical condition, so far as all knew.

DID NOT GO AWAY

Then it was that neighbors gave substantial proof to this newspaper that Miss MacCauley did not go away the latter part of September, 1917, at the time she had sworn the child was born. It was found that she did go away with her mother for six weeks to Maine, beginning the first of June.

This period was six or seven months after her alleged romance at the now famous Rex Arms apartment of William S. Hart.

And it was learned that Miss MacCauley, dean of St. Louis University and a former instructor at Wellesly College, had spent the last part of the Summer with Martha, her sister, and her mother, now dead. According to Elizabeth herself, Martha never knew anything about Elizabeth's alleged affair with Hart, or its supposed aftermath.

Then as a result of the publicity of the MacCauley-Hart affair, two letters came, of which the American is in possession. One was from a woman who was in the midst of adoption proceedings with Elizabeth MacCauley when the child died.

The other letter was from a woman who loaned her child on temporary probation in view of adoption by Elizabeth MacCauley. This woman had had correspondence from Miss MacCauley, stamped New Mexico and California.

It referred to the now spurious child of "Bill" Hart. The baby's real name was and still is John Robert Webb. This child is six years old now.

Robert John Webb was returned to its mother by Miss MacCauley because of illness on or about April 24, 1918.

And this was the child that "Wild-Horse Bill" was asked to caress and call his own. In Miss MacCauley's own words today, William S. Hart was a "wild horse who needed to be tempered and made gentle."

It is of this child and no other child that Elizabeth MacCauley spoke of in her highly interesting letters. She did so for no other reason, she declares, than to arouse in him the feeling of love. It is generally known that "Bill" Hart has for many years wanted a son more than anything else in the world.

There is hardly a person who knows him that has not heard his great desire for a son, a thing he had looked forward to as the crowning joy of his life. One of the reasons his separation from his wife, Winifred Westover, has remained so inexplicable to his friends, is the fact that his separation took place before the birth of his son, born last September. Hart has never explained this apparent riddle.

Beautiful words, full of tenderness, tell the story of the period preceding the birth of the child of her brain.

Wanted Him to Know

Her feelings of this remarkable mental experience was best expressed in a letter she wrote to Hart from a train on her way East, after her short-lived friendship with Hart was finished and Hart had coldly refused to see her again.

She said in this letter:

"I did so enjoy my talk with her (Hart's sister Mary). She was so dear and lovable. I am glad you have each other. I would I had not been there since the first evening I met you—yet I wish you had come in then, even though what I had to tell you seemed to require my putting my arm around your neck and whispering in your ear. Such is not for me, and as you did not call me up later, I had to come away and write.

Was "Mad About Him"

"Among the many things that I thought and thought, I wondered if it could be that you knew what happened to me, even before I did myself, and simply added to the many other silences? Surely not. Anyhow you can see how relieved I might have been to see you and ask you things.

"But it seemed to me you would feel it your right to know. I don't want you to blame me for withholding it from you. I feel very strange and at sea."

In a letter written in April she said:

"I guess you can imagine somewhat of the distress I have gone through in mind, body and state. Life is certainly a strange and wonderful thing, and to me in spite of conditions, amazingly incomprehensible."

In her next letter she wrote:

"It makes me extremely old to think there are dozens of girls and women crazy about you, knowing you so egotistically, but I am mad about you nevertheless. I bet the whole gang put together are not so crazy about you as I am.

Speaking of phantom baby, Miss MacCauley continued:

"I am in a very comfortable room, but I am very uncomfortable. I am scared to death, petrified, and the end is not yet. Nothing is worth this, it is a thing too tremendous to be entered into too casually. And then to think of ignoring it, or going partners in a game as you have.

"I can hardly tell you—perhaps you can readily understand—how awful it seems to me to think of putting an end to a thing which you had given life."

The phantom baby was born September 3, 1917. On Christmas a card mailed to Hart read:

"I have season's greetings from your nameless little boy, who may never see you, since you refuse to recognize him, but who is taught to love you nevertheless. We send love to you, the baby, the dog and I."

Sent Rose to Hart

In June Miss MacCauley wrote from the Hotel Touraine as having been to see the baby. She said she would inclose in the letter a rose the baby had clutched in its little hands and kissed the rose. She broke the stem and sent Hart the rose. She kept the stem herself.

In a letter written October 21, 1918, she said:

"I always enjoy seeing him (the spurious baby) wear some little things I bought for him in Los Angeles. That is near as he has come to you.

"The strange irony of it is that while last year you refused to see him, I had to hurriedly buy things for him, while I sat around with people and industriously made garments for French refugees, being simple, practical, plain, little garments, when I was yearning to do dainty pinky things for him.

"If it were not for the baby perhaps my thoughts would let go of you, but how can it now? And why should it? In doing the best I can by him I will be serving you and I could never express how much it has done for me.

"That is what I so wish I could share for you, for it is a great gift."

(Tomorrow the American will give further details of Miss MacCauley's confession and more details of the evidence in its possession.)

MOTHER, 94, AND 3 DAUGHTERS DIE IN FIRE

Mountain Lake Park, Md., May 25.—Mrs. Mary O'Connor, ninety-four years old, was killed and her three grown daughters were burned to death in trying to rescue her, when a stove exploded in the Summer cottage here occupied by the family.

Mrs. O'Connor and her daughters had not been in the Summer colony more than a few hours when the accident occurred. The mother attempted to start a fire while the daughters were outside. When they reached the building, it was in flames. Heedlessly, they rushed into the cottage, ignoring the flames. They never came out.

Two thousand dollars in gold was found hidden in a chimney by a rescue party which removed the four bodies. It was turned over to the authorities.

Los Angeles—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle offers to forfeit $1,000 if it can be proved that "psychic phenomena" is not genuine.

Detroit.—Henry Ford has advanced to the city $500,000 on a short loan, and within the next week he will ned $1,500,000 more.

New York—The Spanish Royal Mail Steamship Line, operating between Barcelona and New York, has ordered discontinuance of all American sailings. The discontinuance was ordered because of the Supreme Court decision forbidding foreign vessels from bringing liquor into American limits.

BALDWIN IS FRIENDLY TO U. S.

London, May 25 (I. N. S.).—Premier Stanley Baldwin's Tory government today made plain that its attitude towards the United States is to be of great friendliness. At a Cabinet council the government turned down the demand of Tory extremists that a stiff protest be sent to Washington against the American Supreme Court decision barring ships of any nationality from entering American ports with liquor on board.

The government will content itself with informal representations through the British embassy in Washington.

DEADLOCK IN BROCKTON STRIKE

Brockton, May 25.—The shoe strike appeared more serious today than at any time since its inception.

This was due to the refusal of the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers' Association to deal in any way with leaders of the Brockton District Shoe Workers' Union and the fact that members of twelve of the thirteen locals of the Boot & Shoe Workers' Union have seceded to join the strikers.

Officials of the newly formed organized union extended "peace feelers" in the form of invitations for a conference after the street parade and mass meeting of Thursday.

The messenger bearing the request of the strikers was immediately sent back by officers of the manufacturers' body with word that the employers would not meet any labor group except the Boot & Shoe Workers' Union.

The reply did not daunt the strike leaders, who at once made predictions that the entire industry in the district would be tied up in a few hours and that the ranks of the Boot & Shoe Workers would be so thinned that the strength of the organization would be negligible.

Both sides issued statements. The employers expressed confidence in their ability to keep the factories running. They insisted that "many departments of the factories are running full and more loyal workers are returning each day to those departments which are not now full."

The statement also said: "The letting up of the shoe business in the whole country will mean the need for less help than has been the case in the past run. The manufacturers are positive that there is plenty of help, members of the Boot & Shoe Workers' Union to make all the shoes they have orders for."

Joseph Lacouture, chairman of the new union, said: "We want an organization of our own, controlled by local shoe workers, who are interested in their own welfare. We demand a local board of arbitration be recognized in settling all disputes.

"This board should consists of one representative of the Brockton District Shoe Workers' Union, one of the manufacturers and the third to be selected by the other two."

Mrs. Boynton is fighting in the Massachusetts Supreme Court for the possession of her little daughter, who faces the prospect of being a cripple for life through hip trouble.

MAN AND WIFE PERISH WHEN HOME BURNS

Calais, Me., May 25.—Two persons were burned to death and a blind invalid woman made her escape in a blaze that destroyed a farm house on Gleason road.

William Magwood, sixty years old, owner and occupant of the house, and his wife Laura, fifty years old, perished in the flames before aid could come.

Mrs. Eli Jacobs, a widow, blind and infirm, who boarded with the Magwoods, escaped from the burning dwelling by climbing from a window. Neighbors who were attracted by the blaze found Miss Jacobs wandering sightless not far from the scene of the conflagration.

Think of These Things When Buying a Car

Don't make up your mind that a car of the first class is expensive until you consider the extra cost of operating one of the second grade. Those who have driven both will tell you that the difference in the initial cost is more than offset by the savings of money, time and annoyance, and in the satisfaction enjoyed in driving the better one. For example, the first cost of a Peerless is practically the only one, except that for gas and tires. It gives you greater mileage, more power and speed, more comfort and you seldom have to spend a single dollar for repairs. Moreover, when you want to sell or exchange you have a car that will command a good allowance.

DIDN'T KNOW WHEN HIS SON WAS BORN; FINED $10

Worcester, May 24.—Judge Utley in District Court made a very broad statement, then proved his assertion. Judge Utley emphatically declared there are very few fathers that know the days on which their children were born, then called Peter Sucoski of Sutton, a defendant to the stand when he was charged with neglecting to send his son to school, and asked him the birthdays of his four children. Peter took up fifteen minutes of the court's time, pleading ignorance and was fined $10.

BORAH URGES U. S. CONTROL PRICE GOUGERS

Manchester, N. H., May 25.—Waste and extravagance and failure to protect the American people against extortion at the hands of the sugar, coal and railroad barons, were charged against the present administration in Washington by Senator Borah of Idaho in a speech here.

Senator Borah demanded those in charge of the government pay more attention to the needs and sufferings of its own people and less to affairs in Europe and other parts of the world.

He sounded his issue for the next Presidential campaign by declaring that domestic affairs are of far greater importance than the World Court proposed by President Harding or any of the other international complications proposed by factions within the party.

BUDGET FAILURE.

The Senator declared the budget system had proven a failure the first time it encountered the "pork barrel" in the river and harbor bill.

The speech was the first of a series which the Senator intends to make in various parts of the country in which he will demand reduction of taxes and transportation rates, control of the sugar, coal and other industries essential to the public welfare, and the discarding of all matters related to the existing international situation and affairs in Europe until these problems are settled.

BILLS PREPARED.

Already bills to put into effect some of these reforms are being prepared, the Senator said, and they will be submitted to the next Congress. As a member of the progressive group, Senator Borah pledged himself to labor for their enactment.

"How long can we ignore the situation in this country as it is now presented to us by the coal, oil, sugar and transportation questions," asked Senator Borah. "There is a great deal of talk in these days about helping Europe and helping others. But if we do not find a successful way by which to help ourselves, we shall in the next few years not be in a position to help anyone."

The program includes solos by John Glasheen, Thomas Kelley, Patrick Barry, Thomas McDonough and John O'Brien. Messrs. Hurley, Boostel, Ryan and Quigley will appear in a sketch. WON'T SEIZE TROLLEY AS RUM-CARRIER

The Federal Government has decided not to seize the Boston Elevated trolley car on which Morris Rosenberg of No. 80 Florence avenue, Revere, carried eight gallons of alcohol from Chelsea to Boston.

The question was raised facetiously in Federal Court under the statute providing for the seizure of vehicles used in the transportation of liquor. Prohibition agents Snopely and Rivoire happened to board the same car upon which Rosenberg was riding and smelled liquor, finally tracing it to two bundles carried by Rosenberg.

They followed him to Boston and placed him under arrest as he left the car. Rosenberg furnished $500 bail when held for action by the Federal Grand Jury.

COSGRAVE TO BE SEEN IN PUBLIC

Dublin, May 25.—For the first time in several months President Cosgrave will appear at an outdoor meeting next Sunday when, with Professor John MacNeill, Minister of Education, he will address a political gathering at Kilkenny.

A band of Irregulars was captured yesterday in West Ireland. A large quantity of arms, ammunition and explosives was seized.

SHOULD BE ABLE TO SUPPORT HUSBANDS

New York, May 25.—Girls should not marry until they are able to support their husbands, United States Senator Woodbridge N. Fearis of Michigan advised the graduating class of the Packard Commercial School. "You have all," he said, "seen your mothers beg for money from your fathers to buy anything they want, from a safety pin to a gown. If you have first learned to support yourself and your husband, you will never need to beg."

CORNERSTONE TO BE BLESSED SUNDAY

Topsfield, May 25.—The ceremony of blessing the cornerstone of the new Catholic chapel on Park street will take place Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The services will be conducted by Rev. Daniel F. Horgan, assisted by Rev. George H. Chaput and Rev. James A. Donoghue, all of Annunciation Church, Danvers.

SEARLES HIDES AS LOVE SUIT TRIAL NEARS

Albert Victor Searles, millionaire Boston artist, defendant in a sensational breach of promise suit, is not in Boston as the date of his trial approaches.

Searle's friends are unable to say where he is, or where he has been since he suddenly gave up his luxurious apartments on Commonwealth avenue, and started for an unknown destination. It is said, however, that Searles is "available for trial."

A suit for $2,000,000 for breach of promise was brought against Searles by Miss Mary Johnson, Rockport art dealer. She claims the artist made ardent love to her and that following his promise to marry her she gave up a flourishing tea room business in New Hampshire. Not only did Searles refuse to marry her, she charges, but he also refused to communicate with her.

According to his counsel, Attorney Sherman L. Whipple, Searles has recently been in Nova Scotia, but has returned to the United States. The trial is expected to be called early in June. Attorney Whipple declares Searles would be available for trial. He denied that Searles would not appear personally at the trial.

NEW CARDINALS ARE GIVEN THEIR RED HATS

Rome, May 25, (A.P.)—The two Cardinals appointed by Pope Pius May 23 received the red hat from the Pontiff at a public consistory today. The new princes of the church are Cardinal Luigi Sincero, assessor of the consistorial congregation, and Cardinal Giovanni Battista Nasalli Rocca, archbishop of Bologna. Cardinals Iocatelli and Rey y Casanova, who were elevated last December, but who did not assume their new offices at that time because both were absent from Rome, were also given their red hats.

BEAUVAIS SPURNS $250,000 BRIBE FOR STILLMAN EVIDENCE

GUIDE HAS AFFIDAVIT OF OFFER

be read and kept the name of the maker hidden.

WANTS TO HELP.

Beauvais branded New York reports, that he was angry because Mrs. Stillman refused to see him and was planning to "give the real story" to lawyers for James A. Stillman, as false.

"Are you angry?" asked the reporter, quoting from a New York city press dispatch.

"Well, it must be admitted that I am not feeling any too well pleased with the way things are going," replied Beauvais. "The trouble is that I want to help Mrs. Stillman's lawyers and they do not seem disposed to take advantage of my offer.

"How could I feel annoyed over not seeing Mrs. Stillman? The only time I tried to see her since this affair broke was last April, when I was up North.

"I called at Grand Anse hoping to see her, but she had not arrived. I understand she arrived there last Saturday.

PREDICTED VICTORY.

Grand Anse is the Canadian lodge owned by Mrs. Stillman.

Beauvais dismissed as "vile slanders" all assertions that he had at any time "sold out" or expressed a desire to "sell out" to Stillman. He was emphatic in saying he believed Mrs. Stillman would "have an easy victory in the courts."

When the rich banker brought his suit he charged Beauvais with being the father of three-year-old Guy Stillman. Beauvais denied this allegation. The letters mentioned by Beauvais bore references to Guy.

"Did you see how many of these alleged letters were published before these three?" continued Beauvais. "There were quite a number. Why did they not accuse me of having sold them all instead of only three?

"The fact is they wanted these three alleged letters admitted as evidence and the only way they could get them in was to have some one swear I sold them. I have borne any number of these slanders and never said a word.

[illegible]

Mrs. Stillman.

HIS "OCCUPATION."

"These people think that because they, themselves, are not honest nor true blue, no one else is.

"How is it do you think, that the reporter for there Beauvais mentioned a New York City newspaper was able to take a trip to Europe. I got a twelve-page letter from him written in Rome. I have it yet."

Beauvais admitted that he had a large sum of money at the time he was accused of selling the letters but said there was no secret about that.

"The [illegible] [illegible] with my real estate business in which I was engaged for a time," said Beauvais. "It had nothing to do with the Stillman case in any way. But it had a great deal to do with an occupation now held in the highest esteem in the United States, and one which has raised many men to affluence."

But Beauvais said he did not follow this "occupation" any more. The reporter did not attempt to get intimate details, but the explanation appeared quite reasonable in view of the possibilities for trade between Canada and the United States in the past few years.

Wife Brands Stillman a Double-Dealer

Grande Anse, P. Q., May 25.—"First it was me, then it was Flo Leeds, and now it is this new woman. But the new one will be thrown over like the rest of us. My advice to Flo Leeds is, fight like a tiger."

This was the bitter statement of Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman today when she took the side of Mrs. Florence Leeds and called her former husband, James A. Stillman, a "liar and a coward."

She mentioned by name another woman said to have come into the life of the banker and said she had been told by friends in society that this latest admirer had predicted that she would marry Stillman. She referred bitterly to her as "Affinity Number whatever it is."

Mrs. Stillman also reiterated her desire to adopt Flo Leeds' baby and educate him for she said she feared his present environment was unfair to him and she prefers to have him brought up, if Mrs. Leeds will agree, as the recognized brother of baby Guy Stillman.

An entirely new phase of the Stillman tangle was brought out by Mrs. Stillman today when she said that Fred Beauvais, the Indian guide, who was accused of being baby Guy's father, has been annoying her.

Beauvais, she said, was being advised to bring some sort of a suit against her and added that her attorney, John F. Brennan of Yonkers, had written a letter to Beauvais warning him not to annoy her further.

Betty Alden Tells of Engagement of Margaret Williams of Dedham

Miss Margaret Williams, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lombard Williams of Dedham, have just announced her engagement to Harvey Ladew Williams, is a bud of the past season and a member of the Vincent Club.

By BETTY ALDEN.

THE debbies of the past season are all a-buzz again, for one of their most popular members has just become engaged. The young lady in question is "Pit" Williams, more formally known as Margaret—and the youngest of Mr. and Mrs. Lombard Williams' four daughters.

However, when "Pit" joins the Married Maidens, as the Social Register terms them, she will be denied the thrill of having a new surname, for her fiance is Harvey Ladew Williams, son of the late Harvey L. Williams of Morristown, N. J. His mother is now Mrs. Robert W. Locke and is at present residing in Paris.

Miss Williams is a tall girl, and especially devoted to tennis. That she's one of the Vincent Club's best set-up girls is proven by the fact that she was one of the fascinating "penguins" in the Penguin Drill, one of the cleverest numbers in "Rush and Wrangle," presented by the club this Spring. The drill is one of the time-honored features of the Vincent Club's presentation each year, and for a debutante to take part in it is quite an honor. In fact, "Pit" Williams and Gertrude Hooper were the only buds in the drill, the other "penguins" being older girls.

Her three sisters are Mrs. L. Manlius Sargent (Elizabeth Williams), and the Misses Ruth L. and Marion Williams. The family make their home in Dedham, where the marriage of Elizabeth Williams to young Sargent was solemnized two Summers ago in fashionable St. Paul's Church.

SPEAKING of Romance, to judge by the list of engagement and marriage announcements, the 1922-23 girls are quite a bit ahead of the buds of the previous year.

In fact, two of the girls presented last Fall have already promised to "love, honor and obey" their respective spouses, wedding bells will chime for a third this coming June, and several have become engaged.

Miss Suzette Courtney became Mrs. John T. J. Clunie back in December, so that her debutante career was quite brief. The young people, I believe, are now residing in Paris, where Mr. Clunie's business interests lie for the time being. Less than three months later one of the bridesmaids at the Clunie-Courtney wedding followed example. It was Miss Mary Joslin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Elliott P. Joslin of Bay State road, who's now Mrs. Henry Stuart Otto of New York. At this ceremonial Mrs. Clunie was an attendant.

Another bridesmaid at the Clunie-Courtney wedding was Miss Clara Page Barnes of Marlboro street, whose marriage to Henry C. Everett, Jr. takes place in June.

THAT versatile young matron, Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman (Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor) of Beacon street, has gone over to New York to greet her parents, the Robert C. Chatfield-Taylors, who've just returned from a two or three years' stay abroad. They are staying at the Plaza, where they gave a luncheon the other day in honor of Mrs. Whitman, author of "Rush and Wrangle," this year's Vincent Club show.

PEARSON RAPS MERGER FOR NEW HAVEN

Universal Service.

Washington, May 25.—E. J. Pearson, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad system, appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission in opposition to the proposed consolidation of the railway properties of the United States into a limited number of systems.

Pearson declared that since the government released the railroads the New Haven has been trying to rehabilitate its properties and to enlarge its credit to supply a lack of capital, all consistent with good service. If a merger had to come, he said, he preferred the New England regional group to any other. He continued:

"The New Haven has taken this course courageously, recognizing the need of its patrons for transportation in order that their business may grow and prosper, confident of resulting recognition and co-operation which would so spread as to produce for the railroads similar prosperity and a restoration of its credit, a hope it still carries. Its rate has been on the basis of a reasonable return on the valuation of the property.

"During the test period the New Haven earned a surplus of about $4,000,000 per year. If the conditions of that period as to the relative basis of costs and revenues could have been retained, the addition of the economies resulting from the improvements to the property and in operation, would have restored dividends at a high rate. The magnitude of this accomplishment must not be overlooked. The deficit approaching $15,000,000 in 1921, has been reduced to less than $5,000,000 in 1922."

LAWRENCE DOGS TO BE MUZZLED 30 DAYS

Lawrence, May 24.—The City Council today passed an order that all dogs be muzzled or restrained for a period of thirty days. This is due to the discovery of several cases of rabies.

MAYOR AVERTS STRIKE OF WORCESTER LABORERS

Worcester, May 24.—Mayor Sullivan averted a threatened strike of 200 brass check men, temporary laborers in the street department, by securing a compromise to have a delegation of the men meet him and Street Commissioner Blake, Tuesday noon. Seven of the brass check men, headed by Patrick O'Brien, visited the Mayor and told him the men demanded an eight-cent-an-hour increase, such as had been granted the brass check men of the sewer department or they would strike immediately.

OKLAHOMA FAMILY OFF TO ASSIST MRS. CROKER

New York, May 25.—Mrs. W. E. Adkins of Muskogee, Okla., her son, Eugene S. Adkins and his wife, a daughter of W. Tate Brady of Tulsa, Okla., arrived on the first leg of a journey to Dublin, Ireland, where Mrs. Adkins and her son expect to testify in behalf of Mrs. Bula Croker, widow of Richard Croker, who has been charged with bigamy by Croker's children in their effort to break their father's will. At the time it was alleged Mrs. Croker married Guy Marone in Northampton, Mass., Mrs. Croker was living with the Adkins in Muskogee, Mrs. Adkins declared.

CLAPP SEEN ON BOAT HEADED FOR NEW YORK

Vernon W. Clapp, missing Harvard student, was seen and recognized on a boat near the mouth of the Connecticut river by a sailor on the tugboat Spartan. The boat was apparently headed for New York.

This information was communicated from Hartford to George H. Clapp of New York, father of the missing youth, who immediately started back to New York to follow this and other clews.

Clapp at one time was a student at Trinity College, Hartford. Former fellow students at Hartford have assisted in the search for him. It is believed the sailor, whose home is in Hartford, was acquainted with Clapp while the latter was a student there.

HEAVY FIRING NEAR CHINESE BANDIT LAIR

Teintsin, May 25 (AP).—Considerable mystery is attached to heavy firing heard about six miles north of Tsaochwang, in the direction of the Paotzuku stronghold of the Suchow train bandits.

It is assumed the brigands may have encountered government troops and are attempting to escape to the hills in the rear of Paotzuku or that more bandits have joined the outlaws who are holding the foreign captives and are attempting to break the government cordon supposed to have surrounded the mountain retreat. Another theory is that the bandits were fighting among themselves.

A further description of the summit of Paotzuku Mountain was contained in a communication from Major Roland W. Pinger, U. S. A., to the Associated Press.

"Just how high the peak is we are unable to tell," said Major Pinger, "but every morning fog and clouds are seen hundreds of feet below us, with mountain peaks sticking out here and there. Paotzuku top consists of two acres, pear-haped with a periphery surounded by a line of trenches and dug-outs. Another line defends the inner part. Water is stored in three tanks, each of a thousand gallons, and there are many jars which are uncovered during rain. Food sufficient to withstand quite a siege is stored in the dug-outs."

Rockland Me., May 25.—Tobias Seavey fell 200 feet to the bottom of a limsetone quarry here and was killed. He was sixty-five years old.

'DOUG' IS SORRY SON IS GOING INTO MOVIES

Los Angeles, Cal., May 25. — Douglas Fairbanks is sorry that Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is trailing in the footsteps of his illustrious father. He said so when asked his opinion regarding the announcement that Doug, Junior, had signed a three-year contract to appear in Paramount pictures.

"I do not think it is the right thing for the boy to do," said Fairbanks. "I want him to continue his education. He is only thirteen. I have always wanted him to have the best university education. I do not object to him choosing his own future, but he is too young to choose it yet. He should have been permitted to wait until his education was completed. But I fear it will not be properly completed now, for he cannot work in pictures and attend university at the same time.

"However, as everything is in the hands of his mother, she should know what is best for him. Now that such a step has been taken I hope he succeeds in his undertaking and I will give him every assistance I can. But I am sorry that it has happened, for I do not think it is the right thing for the boy."

WIFE ACCUSES WIDOW OF 'SUNSHINE LOVE'

SUES FOR $50,000 BALM

Charges Husband and Hopkinton Woman Plotted to Put Her in Madhouse

Mrs. Molly S. Claflin, wealthy Hopkinton widow, was a sun worshipper, according to Mrs. Anna L. Wakefield of Marlboro, who has started a $50,000 suit, charging alienation and conspiracy against her.

According to Mrs. Wakefield, the other woman adopted the pet name of the "Little Sunshine Girl" and wrote cheery letters to her husband, Frank W. Wakefield, Hopkinton steamfitter.

One of these letters contained the words of a song entitled "Sunshine," the chorus of which ran:

THORNS AND SUNSHINE.

"There's a thorn for every rose that blossoms,
There's a cloud in every sky of blue,
There's a sigh for every heart that's broken,
There are tears for love that proves untrue;
Every life should have its share of gladness,
It's all part of God's eternal plan.
This old world has had enough of sadness,
So spread all the sunshine you can."

Despite these sentiment Mrs. Claflin spread no sunshine in the life of Mrs. Wakefield, who claims the other woman attempted to have her committed to an insane asylum.

BALKED AT PLAN.

Commitment papers were drawn up, Mrs. Wakefield declared, but at the last minute her husband refused to go through with the plan.

She has turned over to Attorney Edward Carr all the letters and affidavits of a highly sensational nature, having to do with alleged "love rendezvous" of Mrs. Claflin and Wakefield.

As a preliminary step to the suit, the attorney attached the real estate and bank accounts of the Hopkinton widow, whose husband, William R. Claflin, died about a year ago.

The attachment was filed at the Middlesex Registry of Deeds at East Cambridge, where the trial will take place.

Mrs. Wakefield, who says she is keeping up a home with her husband in Marlboro for the sake of their seven-year-old son, declared the affair with Mrs. Claflin began in 1918.

TRIPS TO BOSTON.

Wakefield conducted a steamfitting and heating business in Hopkinton, and while buying supplies at the hardware store of Mrs. Claflin's husband, became acquainted with the woman. The couple made frequent trips to Boston, according to the plaintiff, and on one occasion she claims, she found them together in a machine. Mrs. Claflin has three married daughters.

Little Dancer

Edith Silberstein

Fifty pupils of Miss Rose Sampson, dancing teacher of Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, their ages ranging from three and one-half years upward, will take part in a dancing recital at the Sarah Greenwood School Centre, Dorchester, tonight.

The first part of the program, given over to the "Top Shop," will depict the little ones as fairies, Teddy bears and other characters dear to childhood.

One of the cleverest of the child dancers will be six-year-old Edith Silberstein, who will impersonate Jack-in-the-box. Among those taking prominent parts in the specialty number will be the Misses Eva Sampson and Myrel Locke, assisted by a chorus of little voices.

NORTH STATION GUARDED FROM SAFE-CRACKERS

Extra guards were stationed outside the paymaster's office at the North Station following the discovery in the inward baggage room of two large sticks of a substance similar to that which is used in the dynamiting of safes.

Boston & Maine Railroad and Boston police frankly admitted that they expected an attempt would be made to "crack" the railroad safe.

The discovery of the packages caused a flurry of excitement at the station. They were found on a pile of baggage. Railroad Detectives John B. Duffy and Frank Phurgate summoned Lieutenant Duffy of the B. & M. police.

The railroad officers, fearing the packages contained dynamite, had them removed to Police Station No. 1. Special Officer Mooney of that station summoned State Chemist Walter L. Wedger, an expert on explosives.

The chemist said the packages contained a "soap-like" substance used by cracksmen to apply to the doors of safes before an application of nitro glycerine. At the suggestion of the chemist extra guards were thrown about the paymaster's office at the railroad terminal.

T. P. BEAL, BANKER, DIES AT BEVERLY

Thomas Prince Beal, president of the Second National Bank for thirty-five years, died at his home in Beverly. He was the son of James H. Beal, who also had been president of the Second National Bank. Born in Charlestown September 27, 1849, he was graduated from Harvard in 1869.

MANVILLE JURY GIVES DOCTOR $25,092

New York, May 25.—Although the attorney for Charles B. Manville, aged "Asbestos King," in the famous "Spirit Tip" suit of Dr. Alonzo E. Austin, declared that "the gang was after this rich old man for his money," the jury gave a verdict for Dr. Austin.

The physician had sued for payment of a note for $21,000, which he charged Manville had given him, and the verdict was for $25,092.50, representing the face of the note and interest.

The jury, although confused somewhat by the ramifications of the case into the spirit world, including the testimony of a spiritualistic medium, who denied she had given Manville, Charles M. Schwab and other financiers "Etherial Tips," settled the case within a few hours.

Manville, given a ten-day stay by Justice Burr, would not discuss the verdict nor comment upon the spiritist angle of the case. Mr. Manville testified that he got into the tangle through listening to tips on oil stock furnished from the great beyond through Miss Beulah Thompson, a medium.

Laundry Problem of Ruined Baths Puzzles Queen

Rome, May 25.—Rome is smiling over the housewifey touch given the visit of King George and Queen Mary by the Queen during a sight-seeing tour. One of the places which aroused the visitors' interest was the ruined baths of Caracalla.

The guide proclaimed that between 70,000 to 100,000 towels were used daily, according to historical record.

"But who washed all those towels?" asked the Queen.

THIEF ESCAPES THROUGH TRAIN WINDOW

Thirty passengers on a Maine bound train saw a thief enter the stateroom of Mrs. Ezra D. Foster of Mt. Desert Island just before the train left the North Station, and make off with her purse.

They gave chase, but he escaped by diving through a window. The purse contained money, railroad tickets, baggage checks, spectacles and other personal property.

E. Cunningham, train master, arranged to have Mrs. Foster continue on her way to her destination without tickets or cash. Efforts to catch the thief and incidental commotion delayed the train more than a quarter of an hour.

MAN REPAID LOAN IN BLOWS, NURSE SAYS

ANNA K. McLAUGHLIN

Miss Anna K. McLaughlin, No. 509 Columbia road, a district nurse, brought suit before Judge Brackett in Municipal Court to recover $622.55, which she claims to have loaned to Edward L. Laundrigan, No. 21 Henry street, Dorchester.

Some of the loans were to enable him to meet notes on his automobile, she said. One installment of $50, she said, was drawn from her Christmas savings account shortly before Christmas, 1922.

Miss McLaughlin testified during the brief time she was on the stand that [illegible] Laundrigan had severely beaten her, but [illegible]

Woman Adopts Baby Because It Has Red Hair

Red hair isn't necessarily a hoodoo.

Mrs. Harry Bodman of Roxbury wants to adopt a baby. She went to the Federated Jewish Charities for possible prospects. Arrangements were made to have a baby girl brought for her consideration. When Mrs. Bodman came the workers seemed reluctant to showing her the infant.

"What color hair has she?" Mrs. Bodman kept insisting.

"She's a nice baby," was the reply.

"But what color is her hair?"

Finally, with obvious hesitation, Mrs. Bodman was informed that the baby has red hair.

"That's exactly what I wanted. Every one in my family and my husband's family has red hair. I'm the only exception."

And Mrs. Bodman has legally adopted the baby.

BOY OF 17 ACCUSED AS 'SHEIK'

Lynn Benefactor Says He Found Lad He Befriended With His Wife

A lad whom "Ned" Merrill, well-to-do candy manufacturer of Lynn, took into his home and befriended developed into a boy sheik, according to charges by Merrill today.

The youth, only seventeen years old, is named by Merrill in a divorce suit filed at Salem. [illegible] the divorce papers he is James S. [illegible]wood.

"After all I have done for you this is my reward!"

This was Merrill's wrathful outburst, when, it is alleged, he trapped the boy sheik and Mrs. Grace [illegible] Merrill at the Merrill home near the Salem-Marblehead line.

Then, according to the same allegations, the candy manufacturer beat the youth into unconsciousness.

But Mrs. Merrill says [illegible] and even declares that her husband promised, if she would not contest his divorce action, to remarry her a year hence.

TAKEN FROM STATE.

The Merrill charges have stirred residents of Salem, Lynn and Marblehead, where the family is known in business and social circles. The case will be heard next month at Salem.

The youth accused by Merrill was taken, it is said, from State authorities, in whose charge he had been, and was given work by Merrill and then taken into the Merrill home.

Later Merrill employed private detectives. After the latter had made some reports Merrill staged a raid.

He told his wife one night that he was going out of town until the next day. He returned an hour later with detectives. They burst into the house. It was then that Merrill turned on the youth, it is said, accused him of base ingratitude and beat him.

WIFE SCREAMS.

Mrs. Merrill, it is alleged, screamed in vain to her husband to refrain from punishing the youth.

When Merrill had exacted the punishment he thought due he turned to his wife with: "I expected this. I am through."

He strode out of the house. He has not been back. He engaged Henry Mayo of Lynn as counsel. He filed divorce suit. He sold out his interest in the Lynn candy making business.

WIFE DENIES CHARGE.

Mrs. Merrill, in a statement to the Boston American, said:

"I intend to fight my husband to the finish. He has been very unfair to me in this case. I deny the statements made by him to the effect that he found the boy and myself in a compromising position. The true story of the affair is that while I was asleep in my bedroom one night, my husband entered, bringing with him a strange youth.

"'I have brought this boy home for you,' he said to me.

"'My God, Ned, what does this mean?' I asked.

"The boy turned to my husband and asked, 'What is this, Merrill, a frame up?'

"'No,' said my husband, 'I have brought you here for my wife. Now you get out of here. You should know better than to come into a strange lady's bedroom.'

BOY WRONGLY ACCUSED.

"They both then left the room and from that day the boy has been employed on the place. I have often gone to the theatre with the boy, but only when my husband [illegible] me to go. The boy was a gentleman at all times and he has been wrongly accused by my husband."

Husband Names Youth

Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Merrill

The picture of Mrs. Merrill was taken during her Salem schooldays. She is being sued for divorce, her husband accusing her of intimacy with a 17-year-old boy he befriended.

Mrs. Merrill said that her married life has been one of continual abuse by her husband.

"My husband [illegible] treated me and my daughter [illegible] like dogs," she continued. "When I married him I gave my husband $1[illegible]0 to start him in business. He did not return it. [illegible] I have been informed that he has sold his interest in the business. The business was in my name, but I have not seen a cent of the money. He has tried to secure my consent to selling our Summer home at York Beach."

Mrs. Merrill charged that her husband had been cruel to their eldest daughter, Dorothy, nineteen years old, now a nurse at the [illegible] Hospital, in Manchester.

She says her husband came to her Monday and asked her not to contest the divorce. "He promised that if I did not do so he would remarry me a year from now. He said that if I refused to do as he asked I would not have a roof over my head, as he has sold the house," she asserted.

SANDWICH IS FIGHTING FIRE IN WOODS

Sandwich, May 25—The [illegible] of Cape Cod residents who for [illegible] days have been fighting forest fires are concentrating their [illegible] today on a blaze in heavy woods and in the vicinity of the hamlet of Forestdale in this town.

The fire which threatens to extend to the village of Sagamore was brought under control before noon, and other isolated fires were kept within bounds. Thus far [illegible] buildings have been burned.

At Forestdale there is no village centre, the settlement being made up of a few scattered houses. The southwest wind which has been spreading the flames was still strong early in the day. Several thousand acres of woodland has been burned over, most of it covered with a growth of scrub oak.

COLONEL ACCUSED BY GIRL

Miss Reddington Names Ullman of New Haven Father of Her Child in $150,000 Suit

New Haven, May 25—Postmaster Charles [illegible] and Assistant Postmaster [illegible] were among the witnesses summoned to appear before Justice of the Peace George Hall Monday morning in the $150,000 suit brought by Miss Florence Reddington of New York against Colonel Isaac M. Ullman of this city.

Miss Reddington, who lives on 91st street, New York, named Colonel Ullman as father of her child. She declares she wrote to Colonel Ullman, whom she knew as "Lou's Johnson," for two years at post office boxes in New Haven.

According to Joseph Koletsky, counsel for the young woman, Major Louis Ullman, the defendant's brother, rented the post office boxes.

Judge Hall will [illegible] Monday morning [illegible] forwarded to the Supreme [illegible] of New York, where the [illegible] tried.

Attorney Koletsky said his client met Colonel Ullman when she was a clerk in the Immigration Bureau at Ellis Island. She was born in Galway, Ireland [illegible] and had been out of work [illegible] was born.

Colonel Ullman, who is a prominent manufacturer and politician, [illegible] characterizes the charges as blackmail.

CHILD FINDS WOMAN DEAD IN SO. BOSTON

Mrs. Mary McDevitt, sixty-five years old, of No. 301 West Fourth street, South Boston, was found unconscious on the floor of her home by Rose Farren, seven, of the same address, who was in the habit of doing errands for Mrs. McDevitt. The little girl called her mother, who summoned Dr. W. J. Sheehan of No. 355 West Fourth street. He pronounced the woman dead. Medical Examiner Brickley ordered the body removed to the Northern Mortuary.

BROOKLINE WOMAN TO TAKE GIRL'S CHILD

MRS. E. C. BARKER AND "BOBBIE"

Mrs. Barker of Brookline after reading in the Boston American that Lucy Saunders was unable to care for her eighteen-months-old son, Bobby, has offered to adopt him. The baby is now seriously ill, however, at City Hospital.

BABY OFFERED FOR ADOPTION MAY DIE

Baby Robert, eighteen months old son of Lucy Saunders, is on the danger list in City Hospital, suffering with bronchial pneumonia.

If he lives, he will be adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Barker of Brookline.

"Mrs. Barker told me about him, and I went down to the hospital to see the lad," Mr. Barker said. "I tell you, he's a fine fellow.

"He is certainly a sick child. They placed his name on the danger list a few hours ago. I arranged to have a special nurse for him. He deserves the best medical treatment there is, as any baby does.

"If the baby lives, and there is no other hitch, I'm going to take the child. I'd like to have him. I've made up my mind to that and will go through with it."

Mrs. Barker called on the frail girl mother after reading about her plight in the Boston American.

"I want my boy to have a home, a thing I can not provide," the nineteen-year-old mother told Mrs. Barker. "My own health is poor. [illegible] and there is slight [illegible] I shall be able to provide for him as he should be provided for."

Company trustees passed an order forbidding [illegible] ing or soliciting of any kind on the Terminal property except at the newsstands, soda fountains, flower booths, restaurants and other authorized [illegible] in the station.

[illegible] for the order was the fact of complaints from patrons of the Terminal regarding solicitation from [illegible] and particularly from [illegible] The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children had complained of juveniles hanging about the property selling or begging.

No request for permission to sell in the Terminal has been received, it was said, from any patriotic or other organization since the ban was put on.

UNITARIANS gathered at the parting festival of the 83rd anniversary week here were [illegible] to "stay on the job" and not quit even though it had been said that the sect has fulfilled its mission and ought to "go out of business."

"Multitudes are ready to accept the Bible with the privilege of interpreting it themselves," said William C. Crawford who presided at the Copley-Plaza festival which marked the close of the anniversary observances.

Other noted ministers and laymen urged renewed endeavor to offset the materialism, bitter [illegible]tarianism and dogmatism in religion which has followed the World War.

"The world needs our sort of faith. If we have performed our mission, then we should find new work to do," Mr. Crawford told the gathering.

ATHLETES STRIVE TO QUALIFY

By CHARLES E. PARKER

This is "Preliminary Day" in the forty-seventh annual track and field meeting of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America.

The [illegible] one thousand mighty-muscled sons of the more than thirty American colleges, represented in this week's great meet, are hurling weights, skimming hurdles, [illegible] down straightaways, [illegible] tireless circles at the University of Pennsylvania's [illegible] ground Franklin Field—intent upon qualifying for tomorrow's final, while thousands of athletic enthusiasts look on.

[illegible]

All Must Qualify to Start in Finals.

[illegible] "We [illegible] be [illegible]

There are [illegible] questions [illegible] [illegible] the right to appear in tomorrow's final.

[illegible] but one of their counted-upon performers fails in [illegible] the chance of his team winning the meet is seriously reduced just as the unexpected qualifying of some "dark horse" materially adds to the chance of victory.

[illegible] to the watchers [illegible] the work of the several super athletes engaged in today's trial.

There are several who appear capable of creating new intercollegiate [illegible] and in some instances new [illegible] records [illegible] they [illegible] come in preliminary heats of [illegible] rounds.

Tootell and Hills Should Set Records.

Fred Tootell, Bowdoin hammer thrower, and Ralph Hills, Princeton [illegible] are two who appear certain to set new intercollegiate marks [illegible] Sam Sorrenti [illegible] California javelin thrower; [illegible] Princeton low hurdler; Al [illegible] Lafayette sprinter; LeRoy Brown, Dartmouth high jumper, are others who may create new marks in their events. And witnessing the smashing of a record is indeed pleasant to patrons of track and field sports.

But the prospective record makers do not exhaust the list of super athletes competing in this meet.

There are several ambidextrous young men who are listed as contestants in from three to a half dozen of the events on the program and who will spend busy afternoons hustling from cinder path to jumping pits and there to field event circles, [illegible] qualifying in each of the main events in which they are entered.

RED SOX FIGHT THE SENATORS AGAIN

By NICK FLATLEY

Ban Johnson is probably wondering why [illegible] ball world gets all [illegible] somebody wants [illegible] the Red Sox. After watching [illegible] play the Senators in the opening game [illegible]

[illegible] the worst punish[illegible] Harry [illegible] for the rest of his life.

For the outfit didn't look like much of a ball club in its [illegible] back into home [illegible] The boys couldn't [illegible] Rube Zachary's slow [illegible] bats and [illegible] when they are not hitting. After a [illegible] start for a club that is [illegible] quently.

To be sure, the [illegible] were weary from a long [illegible] but the Senators had the [illegible] if they wished to use it. They didn't need the same as they went after things like a regular ball club.

The boys from Washington look a whole lot better than they did this Spring and seem to have a lot more pep than most capital outfits have been packing in recent years. Manager [illegible] is undoubtedly responsible for that. [illegible] club has lost a lot of ball games but he expects to get [illegible] before [illegible]

[illegible] a lot of experience [illegible] third base, and [illegible] a com[illegible] bring steady re[illegible] very fine per[illegible] and he looks like a [illegible] well [illegible] in the [illegible]

If he [illegible] up the Sens will have one of the best infields in the league as the defense [illegible] everywhere else. And the outfield [illegible] pretty good too. The club is just like all the others—ready to [illegible] a big figure [illegible] it gets [illegible] pitching.

HAMBONE WINS BY A KAYO IN THE FIRST

It took Hambone Kelley of South Boston just two minutes to put Cyclone Ketchell of Bridgeport, Ct., to sleep in the first round of their scheduled ten-round bout at the Cambridge A. C.

Ketchell started out as if to hit Kelley at will, but his blows had no effect on the South Boston man. Kelley suddenly started to [illegible] his right and left on Ketchell's face and it was a left hook to the chin that put Ketchell on his knees for the count of nine.

Ketchell jumped to his feet and hit Kelley over the heart with his right. Kelley turned with a fast right to Ketchell's jaw and the [illegible] went up in the air and down with a bang that could be heard [illegible] the pavilion.

Three preliminaries preceded the feature bout and all were fairly good. The best was the semi-final between Jack Dillon of Woburn and Jimmy Garden of Roxbury. Dillon was a fast stepper and chased Garden about the ring the better part of the battle. [illegible] with an injured right hand, but his left hook to Garden's body and heart floored the Roxbury boy in the third round for the count of six.

Garden made a desperate effort to put Dillon away in the [illegible] and he managed to get the better of it toward the end of the last round.

John Barrett of Cambridge was given the decision over Joe Rodrick also of Cambridge in their six-round battle. Barrett hit Rodrick hard and often, while Rodrick was content with hitting his man with light taps on the face.

DORCHESTER CLUB PLAYS THE TIGERS

Dorchester Millstreams play tonight with the Boston Tigers on the Town Field. The Dorchester nine is composed of local boys from different [illegible] and make a fast team.

The Dorchester Millstreams are also [illegible] booking a few more games for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays away from home or twilight attractions at home. Games can be arranged by calling Back Bay 5582 between 11 and 12 or 4 and 5 daily.

GUSTIN TACKLES DREW IN BOUT AT C. A. C.

All the world likes a fighter.

That's one of the reasons why the Commercial Club in Bowdoin Square will prove [illegible] attractive for the fans [illegible]

Steve Gustin

Steve [illegible] of South Boston, a [illegible] Terry McGovern, is [illegible] to [illegible] with Johnny Drew of Worcester in the [illegible] bout of [illegible] rounds. Gustin, [illegible] with Irish blue eyes, isn't fancy or clever or anything like that [illegible] does [illegible] threaten to outclass Johnny Kilbane in the line [illegible] is plain, old-fashioned [illegible] fighting.

From bell to bell [illegible] forward, crashing [illegible] right hand blows at the [illegible] of an enemy. He may be [illegible] by [illegible] hooks and snaky [illegible] jolts, but he always [illegible] forward. Now and then [illegible] rugged puncher [illegible] he never fails to [illegible] Which is what makes him a [illegible] attraction.

Drew won over Young [illegible] of New Bedford, at the Commercial Club last week. He showed a world of class in that encounter [illegible] he will do even better [illegible]

Mickey Landers, former amateur champion, will have [illegible] Spike Hennessey of Waltham as an opponent in an [illegible]

Arnold Ryan [illegible] and Andy Martin of the [illegible] rivals in amateur days [illegible] hostilities in an eight [illegible]

Al Corbett of the W[illegible] will take on Young Siegel [illegible]

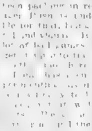
A merry evening is [illegible] by all.

Col. Bob McKirby has [illegible] his new tuxedo and [illegible] He will also smoke cigarettes [illegible] his monogram.

"Just so as to give the old clubhouse a little tone," remarked the Colonel, as he dispatched [illegible] invitation to Large Joseph McCarthy.

FREDDY DUFFY HAS FAST AGGREGATION

One of the best semi-pro teams in the State is the nine representing Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Jamaica Plain. Freddy Duffy, one time prominent boxer, is manager of the Holy Name Society, and figures his outfit as good as can be gathered.



Freddy Duffy

Already they have struck [illegible] some pretty stiff opponents and [illegible] George Lyons, former star pitcher of the West Roxbury High team, is twirling for the Holy Name team. He has tossed a no-hit game and promises to improve as the season goes on.

[illegible] there would [illegible] a general [illegible] in St. Louis [illegible] concerning Sisler have been conflicting.

"Stories [illegible] spread [illegible] that Sisler would be back this year, but nothing but a miracle can restore him to [illegible] before 1924.

And unless [illegible] miracle is [illegible] in a [illegible] way Sisler won't [illegible] be able to play ball again."

There is a lot of pride and satisfaction in producing a hat model that is so universally liked as this wonderful style of ours. It is liked by the young fellows because it is full of pep, snap and real styling. It is chosen by the older men because in addition to these qualities, it is also light in weight, comfortable feeling and manly looking. It is such a well balanced hat that it is practically "universal." You understand, of course, that in addition to this one style we have one hundred others. Unlimited choice of variety is our motto.

Picture No. 3 also shows an incorrect position. Grasping the club with the fingers only would not give you a firm hold on the club.

After laying the club across the base of the fingers as indicated in Picture No. 1 simply close the hand over the shaft so that the four knuckles of the hand are in full view. That will give you a straight left arm all through your swing at [illegible] and a straight left, in my opinion, is the secret of how to get power into the shot.

BOSTON COLLEGE PLAYS PENNSYLVANIA TODAY

[illegible] opposition [illegible] the University of Penn [illegible] The game [illegible] be featured by the [illegible] this season [illegible] register a [illegible]. Huntzinger who [illegible] would be saved [illegible] Holy Cross [illegible] take one game [illegible].

However [illegible] and has [illegible] Penn [illegible] last year, but it will [illegible] the [illegible] expense of Penn.

The question how will B. C. stand up under severe pressure will be answered in today's game.

Penn will undoubtedly press the Eagle hard. Huntzinger is a perfect twirler having won sixteen straight games before he hit up against Providence. No pitcher this year, with the exception of Triggs of Providence and Morrill of Tufts, have worried the Eagle to any extent.

With Huntzinger on the mound it will probably be a different story, but the Henricksen men promise to hit him freely. If they accomplish what they boast the victory will mean a great deal toward filling the Eagle with confidence in their ability to take Holy Cross into camp on Memorial Day.

Pennsylvania is an inconsistent team. They field fast, but hit light, although at times they step out in a hitting spree. The Southerners had hard work beating Yale, 4 to 3, after ten innings, and early in the week Lafayette, whom the Eagle slaughtered, held them to another ten-inning, 4 to 3, battle.

Such dope as this, however, will in no way influence the game. The Eagle must fight and to the utmost of its strength to win.

No better evidence that tennis has [illegible] the status of a major sport in America is needed than the size of the Spalding Tennis Annual, which is considerably in excess of 400 pages.

The rules are, of course, the feature of the book. PARISH & BINGHAM

To J. O., Massachusetts avenue— You ask [illegible] concerning Parish & Bingham Corporation [illegible] this stock four or five years ago when it sold at $40 a share and now it sells between $9 and $10 a share. Your letter brings up a very interesting point of decision.

The merger of the Parish & Bingham [illegible] Pressed Steel [illegible] proved May [illegible] bonds to provide working [illegible] preferred [illegible] Parish & Bingham [illegible] shares of common stock which [illegible] are to be held by the banking syndicate and the president of the company.

None of the published announcements makes mention of an arrangement taking care of the common shareholders of Parish & Bingham. According to the balance sheet of Parish & Bingham December 31, 1922, net assets applicable to the 150,000 shares of no par value capital stock amounted to $18.07 a share so that it would not seem logical to expect the old common shareholders to be ignored. The River Amazon

THE River Amazon got its name from Francisco Orellana, who, coming from Peru, observed on its banks armed women. He called the country Amazonia, and the great stream came to be the Amazon.

THE HE MAN By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

Thrilling Story of Man and Girl Who Are Utter Strangers Living Together in African Jungle

HOW THE STORY STARTS:

ANDREA PELLOR, the daughter of an impoverished British baron, is engaged to a millionaire diamond merchant whom she does not love. Stealing away from the Indian Ocean Hotel she sees a flying machine on the beach, being gotten ready to ascend by two men, a white and a giant black. Upon the spur of the moment she cries: "Take me with you!" He straps her in and they are away. She becomes frightened and asks to be taken back. He says he is not going back. The engine goes wrong and they land in the midst of a village in the African jungle. The natives hail him as a friend.

CHAPTER VII.

"BUT it isn't," he replied. "It's the most practical thing in the world. It has not only the attributes of a will-o'-the-wisp but all the virtues of a kitchen mop and it has more names than an archduke. Ambition, illusion, youth, are a few of its commoner appellations, but the one that comes nearest to imprisoning it in a phrase is, breath of life."

Andrea studied him almost impatiently; inwardly she was rebelling tremendously at finding herself so continually interested by one who was even at the moment calmly doing her a great wrong. If he had spoken as didactically about his precious philosophy as what he said would have read, she would have found herself at once; but he hadn't. In that point more than in any other lay the charm—charm? Well, call it charm, anyway, of this unusual male. He talked with little pauses, not from hesitancy but as though his mind were browsing aloud in pleasant pastures.

Having thought the matter out with a view to hearing him browse some more she said, "Can't you bring it a little nearer?"

"I'll try," he answered after a pause. "Breath of life is that quality which holds back a man from marrying for money and urges another to the desertion of wife and children because he's bored, that makes a preacher leap from the pricking pinnacle of dogma to the heart of the Red Light district and his own destruction, that leads the king-bull of the herd to impatient paths of lonely meditation. In short, it's the perpetual vigilance of self at the apparent risk of the soul."

"Sort of sublimated egoism," remarked Andrea.

"Selfishness, you mean?" He shook his head. "It's not even on that plane; it's so much over it that selfishness as a quality is merely one of the pebbles on the beach below it that the sea has been grinding down to uniform characteristics for a hundred years. No, it's almost an opposite; it's the defence of the individual against egoism, socialism and every other ism in the calendar of immutable rules of living. Alive, it's a flame; dead, it doesn't even leave a corpse."

Andrea yawned. "Now honor," she said.

"Won't you talk a little?" said the man. "Defining is a great game and I don't want to hog all the fun. Speak for your class. What's honor?"

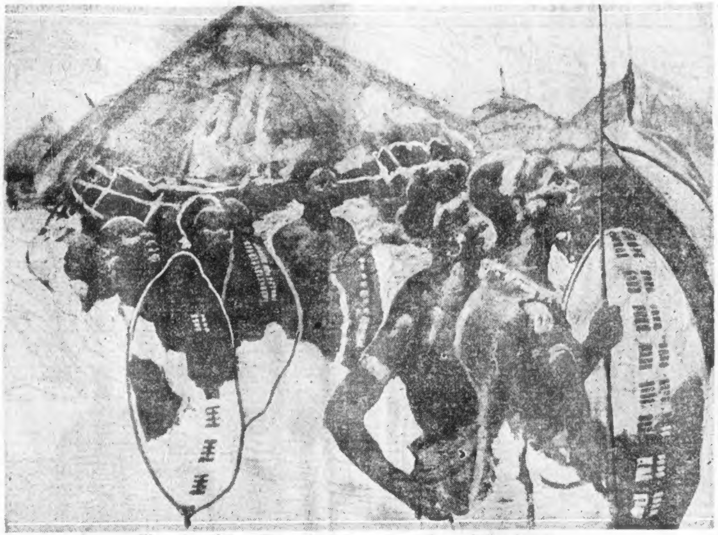
Andrea thought for a minute; then she smiled. "With women, it's keeping anywhere this side of the Rubicon." She paused.

"And with men?" he urged.

"With men it's the art of not getting caught."

"Capital!" he exclaimed.

"Yes," she murmured. "I thought you would like those answers." He stared at her, but she kept her face innocent of malice.



The men of the village started on a hunt through the jungle

"Now tell me what honor really is."

"I believe you could have told me," he answered, "except for the fact that your exceptionally good taste bars sincerity. Honor, to my mind, is the pillar without props upon which individual life is twined. It's what is left of morality when you're sure no one is looking."

Andrea stifled another yawn. "Some of the things you say," she gasped, "are almost clever enough for a book to read in bed."

"I beg your pardon. I'm sorry," said the man and clapped his hands loudly. A bundle under the tree, wrapped up head and all in a blanket, resolved itself into Bathtub rubbing sleep out of his eyes; arose, seized a rope on a pulley and hauled. The circular mosquito net rolled up from about the table.

"Will you go to your room and tell me if you have everything?" asked the man. "Everything necessary, I mean."

Andrea reached for a fresh cigarette. "Don't be absurd," she said. "I'm not going to bed for hours." She glanced at him with a sort of diffident look, as though she were about to give away a secret. "When I yawn, always keep on talking. It means I'm—I'm tired. You know."

"Damn your society tricks," remarked the man. "I'm going." He arose and turned his back on her.

Before he had taken three strides her voice came to him and in it was a new quality, a sure maturity. "Go if you like," she said evenly, "but I shall sit here until you come back."

He turned at once, a flush in his cheeks. "Forgive me," he said simply, struck a match and held it for her.

"Now health," said Andrea. "Don't you think I'm reasonably healthy already?"

"No," said the man, "until you've wolfed a whole meal and grabbed chicken with your fingers, you don't really know what bodily health means. God has given you such beauty of skin that you owe it to every eye that caresses itself with a sight of you to keep it without blemish and yet you sit there and ask me if you're not reasonably healthy with a spot on your cheek."

"Oh!" cried the girl. A sea of sudden color swirled about her neck, up into her face and down over one-half the length of her bare arms. She threw up a hand to her cheek and pressed it there. Her eyes were aflame. "If ever I can hurt you—" she said slowly, "if—ever—I—can—"

The man looked surprised; then contrite and finally merely grave.

"Let us assure you," he said, "that you will inevitably have it in your power."

"I'll not forget when that day comes," she said and arose. With her hand still pressed to her face, she hurried from him across the craal into her room and slammed and barred the door behind her. She went straight to the mirror and took her hand away. Such a trifle that tiny spot had seemed last night, the night of a party—just an excuse for a beauty patch of black plaster—and tonight it was immeasurably ugly!

Ready for Bed

With her bed so near she could not stop to cry just yet. She went about her preparation deliberately, subconsciously secure in the thought that she could soon soak her pillow in aching comfort. She took off her frock and performed all the rites of toilet even to brushing and plaiting her hair. Throughout her maneuvering she was aware of a presence in the room, inanimate but terrifying personal. However she turned, it still lurked in the corner of her eye, accused her of dallying and almost said aloud, "Eventually! why not now?" Finally she slipped off the rest of her dainty clothes and with eyes screwed tight shut, groped for the presence, seized it and put it on in two parts.

"Oh!" she gasped in a rage, "that I should have to wear that beast's silk pajamas!" She put out the light, hurled herself at the cot, curled up like a kitten, drew the sheet over her head, cuddled into the pillow and sobbed, "Poor Andrea! Poor Andrea Pel—Pe—"

Brutal, elemental sleep had choked the words in her throat.

There is no telling when Andrea would have awaked had it not been for Bathtub who thundered on her door at the scandalously late hour in that clime of eight in the morning.

"Bath ready, Missis! Bath ready, Missis!" he was chanting monotonously when she swam up to consciousness from depths of childlike slumber and to the realization that she had been half hearing his cry for at least an hour. She arose, put on her cloak, opened the door and rubbed her eyes at the shock of a noonday glare.

The boy grinned from ear to ear. "Bath ready!" he exclaimed with a happy finality and bearing towels and soap led her to the newly constructed little hut in the yard. He placed the paraphernalia on a chair set close to a collapsible canvas tub and from a neighboring smoldering fire fetched a big tin of water.

"Hot water!" cried Andrea. "Why, I'm boiling myself. Bring me cold water."

"Cold water no good," affirmed Bathtub as he emptied the tin.

"But I wish cold water," said Andrea.

"Cold water plenty no good for white Missis," reaffirmed Bathtub and withdrew, carefully closing the door behind him.

Andrea enjoyed the bath and learned in ten minutes the soundness of the tropical rule that it had taken some oldtimer ten years to evolve: The hotter the day the hotter the water. Feeling refreshed, almost cool, she started back to her room but stopped on the veranda, her eyes held by sundry things on the table, a man's soft shirt, freshly ironed, a roll of khaki cloth, scissors, a thimble and one of those pepper-pot tins of assorted needles. She stared at them long and helplessly, her lower lip trembling; then she went in, put on her things except her frock and covered its lack with her cloak. She did her hair last of all, by way of change, and just as she finished heard Bathtub's call to breakfast.

Nobody Around

Neither white man nor black was in evidence but even so the day passed swiftly, so many were the new features of the craal's changing scene. She chose a book at random, had her hammock-chair dragged into the shade of the dining tree and stretched out to her first lesson in lazy content. Gradually she grew drowsy with the heat but not so sleepy that she failed to hear from away off the far-carrying report, six times repeated, of a high-powered rifle.

WHY POPCORN POPS

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"We are readers of your articles, and the other night we popped some corn, and as we sat around the question came up: 'What makes hot corn pop, and why don't other cereals do the same?' Nobody's answer satisfied everybody, so we resolved to write to you.—F. H. W., Philadelphia."

I am obliged to you for recalling delightful memories of a wire "corn popper" dancing to and fro with lightning speed across a red-hot stove lid, while the rattle of the popping corn rang like swift, sustained rifle fire through the house, and the lid of the popper was almost lifted off by the swelling mass of snow-white cornflowers into which the hundreds of small, light yellow translucent grains were transformed by incessant explosions, that not only turned them inside out but expanded them to twenty times their original size, while a delicious and altogether unique perfume filled the air around.

The acme of skill in popping corn was attained by him who could pop every grain to the very last and burn or scorch not one. If you dissect a kernel of popcorn you will find that the "endosperm," an envelope enclosing the embryo and furnishing nourishment for it during its growth has become a firm, horny shell, impenetrable to moisture. But there is moisture in the centre of the kernal, and when the heat reaches it it suddenly flashes into a tiny bit of steam, powerful enough not only to blow the hard shell open but because of its interpenetration of the internal substance, to explode the latter into the form of a thick-petalled flower. The kernels of ordinary cereals, including common yellow corn, are not inclosed in equally impenetrable shells, and consequently do not similarly pop when heated.

Not a Blemish mars the perfect appearance of her complexion. Skin troubles are effectively concealed. Reduces unnatural color and corrects greasy skins. Highly antiseptic. White-Flesh-Rachel. 3

FLAMING YOUTH

LUCKY DAY FOR WOMEN

MERCURY and Venus dominate today's planetary horizon, according to astrology. On the whole this should be a fortunate day. Particularly are women and their activities well directed during this sway. This should be a lucky rule for theatres and those who play in them. But it is not a sway under which the sign contracts, it is said.

Those whose birthday it is have the forecast of a year not without hazards and disappointments. Caution about romance, too, is advised.

Children born on this day are likely to require a great deal of mental training so that principles of respectability may be imparted early.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

HE TELLS OF AN EXCITING RACE

CAN giraffes run? Indeed they can!

You wouldn't think they could because their legs are not of the same length. Their front legs are much longer than their hind legs. For this reason they aren't very graceful when they run. They have a queer lumbering gait, but they get there just the same. And how funny their long necks look as they run along!

You know why giraffes have such long necks, don't you?

No?

Nature has given them their great long necks so that they can gather the kind of food they like to eat. Giraffes thrive on the tender green leaves of trees and to get them they reach up and bite the leaves right off, without any effort, because they're so tall and their necks so long that they can reach way up in the branches of trees, where the tenderest leaves grow.

One day while we were in Africa, where Bobby and I had made friends with a giraffe—Bunny had introduced us—I happened to say:

"It is surprising to think that a giraffe can run faster than a horse in the open country."

Bobby questioned this and thought it was too bad that there were no horses around so that we could have a race and see if I was right.

But wise old Bunny cocked his ear on one side and asked:

"What do you say to a race between a giraffe and a zebra? I'll ride the giraffe and beat Bobby on a zebra."

"Fine!" Bobby and I shouted together.

"All right," said Bunny. "The terms are that if Bobby gets to the finishing line before I do he wins. If I get there first I win. Is that right?"

"Right you are," Bobby chuckled.

So the race was arranged.

And I must say I had to laugh when I saw them start.

I was at the finishing line becouse I'm always the judge in any competitions of this sort.

As I watched them coming up the course I could see the great long neck of the giraffe, and by his side, going for all he was worth, the zebra with his tail flying in the wind.

Bobby was on his back shouting:

"Come on, Zebra! Come on!"

And Bunny was riding close up with his front paws clutching the giraffe's neck.

On and on they came!

They were almost at the finish line now. They were running so evenly that their four hoofs seemed to go out at the same time as if they were driven like a team of horses.

I said to myself:

"This race will be a tie."

But I was wrong. For just before they got a few feet from the finishing line, what do you think that giraffe and Bunny did?

The giraffe lowered his head and stretched his long neck out as far as he could and touched the thread at the finish first. And that clever little Bunny just slid right out along the giraffe's neck and sat on his head.

Bunny had won by a neck.

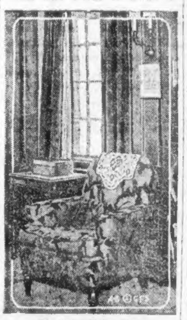
FURNITURE IN HOME

—By Marian Moore—

DO you know where the bit of lace on the back of this chair got the formal name of "antimacassar"?

The Beau Brummells of the nineteenth century used "Macassar oil" to keep their hair sleek and shiny, and thrifty English housewives were forced to devise a means of protecting their chair backs from its stickiness. Hence the bit of washable lace came into use, and was known as "antimacassar." American housewives commonly called them "tidies," and no chair was complete without one. They still find favor in many homes where slip covers are not used on the upholstery.



For Quiet Relaxation

The chair in the illustration is deeply cushioned to make it a comfortable lounging place, and is flanked by a small square table bearing a humidor. Its position beside the window gives it excellent light for daytime, and the wall lights above make it comfortable for the evening. Looks like Father was head of this household, doesn't it?

Syrup Pepsin Helps Nature Give Relief

Try it when a Laxative is needed and see the wonderful results

IT is not necessary to take a violent physic for so simple an ailment as constipation. Yet many thoughtless parents give mercury in the form of calomel, and coal-tar in the form of phenol when a natural vegetable compound like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do the work equally well and without danger. People should realize that mercury may salivate and in certain conditions loosen the teeth; that phenolphthalein, by whatever name known and however disguised in candy, may cause dermatitis and other skin eruptions; that salt waters and powders may concentrate the blood, dry up the skin and cause lassitude.

You can take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself or give it to a babe in arms, as thousands of mothers do every day, with the confidence that it is the safest and best medicine you can use for constipation and such complaints. A teaspoonful will relieve you over night even if the constipation has been chronic for years. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and does not cramp or gripe. Every druggist handles it, and bottles are so generous that the cost amounts to only about a cent a dose. You buy it with the understanding that if it does not do as claimed your money will be refunded. The names of all the ingredients are on the package.

Mrs. A. Arceneaux of Orange, Texas, suffered from constipation for six years and found no relief until she took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin; and Mrs. Gus Anderson of Ball, Kans., corrected her bowel trouble so that she now eats and sleeps normally. Bring a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin into your own home and let the family use it for constipation, biliousness, wind, gas, headaches, flatulency, and to break up fevers and colds.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

Continuing the Interesting and Intensely Human Adventures of Anne and Jim

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming.

By Ann Lisle

"Have you no pride?" he demanded. "Sitting there in that lighted car at this hour——"

I stared at him for a moment and then I lost control of myself and burst into wild laughter. I felt the tears running down my face, but I couldn't stop laughing. Jim, mistaking it for an hysterical seizure, ran and got some aromatic spirits of ammonia.

For the second time I'd walked out of the room—as Jim used to do when we quarrelled.

When I came back Jim was sitting in the chair I'd just left. He was drooping forward, with his hands hanging between his knees. As soon as I came into the room he began muttering:

"I can't stand it. I don't see what you find in a man like Rockhill."

"I find—a paying client," I said wearily.

"Is that all you have to say for yourself?" demanded Jim.

"There's nothing else to say—nothing to explain. I guess I looked like a fool sitting there," I began, "but you're acting like a child."

Drew Her Face to His

Suddenly Jim, from whom I'd expected fury at this, sprang to his feet, caught me in his arms and drew my face to his.

"Don't be so cold to me," he murmured against my hair. "I can't stand it. You're my girl. You're my Lilac Princess. Nothing can change that."

I tried to meet the fervor of his lips. But out of the bitterness I couldn't shake off so quickly, I murmured:

"Oh, Jim, it seems nothing can change you—you're the same old Jim."

One morning shortly after our absurd quarrel over Howard Rockhill, Jim suggested that it would be good business to have Betty and Ralph up to dinner that evening.

"We don't see half enough of them. They're a couple of good scouts and two of the best friends we've got," he added.

I was delighted that after a week of dissension we'd found a subject on which we could agree. And I was equally delighted when I telephoned the dinner invitation and both Betty and Ralph promptly accepted. But by evening I wasn't very much pleased over having company, even though such friends. For I'd began to feel very tired and feverish and found myself in the throes of a sudden ugly cold.

Still our little party went along very pleasantly, punctuated by a few coughs and sneezes and shivers from me. At the end of the dinner, which had been agreeable socially, even if I couldn't eat much, Jim burst out suddenly in a tone of just having remembered:

"Say, folks, I made a date for us. I wonder what we'll do about it. I don't suppose you feel fit to go out tonight, Anne?"

"Oh, no, she mustn't!" interposed Betty. "Let's call off the date, Jim, and stay home. We were having such a good time, and if it's not too much for Anne to have us here, let's go on as we are."

Stunning Apartment

"I—can't," hesitated Jim. "You see, the date was with Rosa Cordova. She's found a stunning furnished apartment in a studio building over on the other side of town. She got word just as I was leaving the office that she could see it tonight, and she wanted an advisory board to look it over with her. So I'll have to go. It would be fine if you folks would come along. I'd like it, and I know Rosa would appreciate the attention."

I was thoroughly uncomfortable and felt that Betty was vaguely disturbed.

"I hate to leave Anne," she said. "It seems too bad"—

"It seems too bad to slight Rosa," cut in Jim. "I told her I had a date with some friends and that we'd be over later. She wants a woman's opinion of the place. That's the least I can do."

I felt as if I ought to say that I wished he'd brought Rosa to dinner. But I hated rehearsing any part of our discussions. So I contented myself with protesting that I didn't mind in the least being left alone. Then Ralph Lacy astonished me by saying in the quiet, competent way which folks don't dispute:

"If Anne isn't tired, why can't I stay and visit with her? Mrs. Winston can hand Mrs. Cordova the feminine advice. You two ought to make a perfectly satisfactory committee and a cold's a fine alibi on a blustery nigh lik, this."

"Good business!" agreed Jim with a heartiness which might have annoyed me if he'd been about to start off with anyone but Betty. "Come alone, Betty, this is the first time in ages we've been alone together."

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

We all laughed at his tone of burlesque emotion. And Betty smiled wistfully, begging for more flattery as she said:

"It's not much of a privilege—being with me these days. I'm not very good company."

"The best!" said Jim heartily and with kindly understanding of Betty's mood. "Come along now. I can hardly wait, now we've set for one of our old-fashiontd visits. And Rosa will be pleased. She admires thoroughbreds. Look out for the invalid, Lacy. So long, folks!"

A Tete-a-tete

He departed without any further notice of me, propelling a vivid Betty, who responded eagerly to the suggestion that her society was of importance to anyone. I had a sudden relaxed feeling of gratitude because there hadn't been a discussion. I find myself with a growing dictates for scenes and with a growing fear of Jim's uncertain temper. I turned to the good friend who never fails.

"I'm going to stack up all the pillows on the divan and lean back and permit myself to be entertained," I announced.

"It's the first time in ages we've been alone together," said Ralph Lacy.

I smiled thinking this repetition of Jim's words to Betty was part of a game.

"You get more meaning into the words than Jim did when he used them," I suggested lazily.

"I mean more than he did. I haven't had a talk with you for a long time. I seem always told off to Mrs. Winston. She's a charming partner"——

"You must enjoy Betty W. She's a dear. And when I think how much your friendship meant for me in my lonely time, I'm so glad she has you"——

"She hasn't cried Ralph Lacy, almost fiercely. "You"—He broke off curtly.

ONCE the Bathing Girl could hardly cause a man to even turn his head to look. She was too strange a creature. Too downright comical and homely.

Once the Bathing Girl wore baggy knickerbockers half way to her ankle; over that a dress that belled out to her knee gathered thickly into a wide band that divided her exactly in the middle; this had puffed sleeves and a gathered neck; there was a whole-hearted effort to get just as much goods as possible into the affair. Cotton stockings showed for a modest inch of two above the high laced shoes, and on her head the water-baby wore a bonnet.

But NEOW! as the beloved Bert Williams used to say—in 1923 the sirens that sing on the rocks "Tra La," can vamp the very sober fishes in the deep sea out to dance deliriously on the sand. And man is not fighting game any more—he comes in easily.

YOUR BEAUTY

A NEW SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Maria Jeritza,

The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

EXERCISE is always refreshing and beneficial in a general way to the normal individual, but, of course, certain exercises have an especial tendency to beautify and strengthen certain sets of muscles through starting up circulation and limbering up comparatively inactive muscles.

You will find, for instance, that the exercise you have been practicing for your back, hip and waist muscles have tended to strengthen your abdomen and reduce its size. Exercises that straighten and strengthen the back are especially desirable to insure a flat stomach and abdomen.

With the waking up of these abdominal muscles to activity will come freer circulation and a general sense of well-being which will help you to lose all uncomfortable consciousness of your body.

After all, it should be our motive in working for beauty and health to have bodies in perfect working order that we need not be conscious of them, and to be so "easy to look at," as you Americans say, that our physical appearance will be as harmonious as our thoughts and our efforts to serve others.

When asked to describe a beautiful woman, a distinguished art critic once replied:

"Oh, that's easy—she's harmonious!"

Here are abdominal exercises, then, that you will enjoy and which should help you to attain harmonious beauty. Try them while you are enjoying your twenty minutes of work before your open window each morning. Practice them with such energetic accuracy that you will glow with healthful perspiration, then you will the more enjoy the tepid bath and alcohol rubdown which should follow. And you will be surprised to see how quickly, your abdomen will decrease in size and grow firm.

Lie flat on your back with your arms straight back of you on the floor. Throw your arms forward as you rise to sitting position without lifting your heels from the floor.

Next, try to touch your left foot with your right hand while you hold the other arm as far in back of you as you can. Now alternate, that is, touch your right foot with your left hand, while you hold your right arm straight back of you. Repeat ten or twelve times.

The following exercise is also adapted to strengthen the back and reduce the abdomen:

Stand erect with your head up, your shoulders well back and your hands on your hips, slightly forward so that your fingers press your abdomen.

Now bend forward slowly. Keep your head and back in a perfectly straight line and rigid and at the same time gently knead your abdomen with your fingers.

Bend until your body forms a right angle, then slowly raise yourself back to position. Be careful to keep the line from your waist to the top of your head straight, for otherwise the exercise will lose its force. Repeat from ten to fifteen times.

Rowing and canoeing are both valuable as a means of reducing the abdomen.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"The Rift Within the Lute."

This figure is used by Tennyson to describe the discord a small imperfection can cause in an otherwise perfect work. The lute, which is noted for the peculiar sweetness of its music, is made of a certain wood which must be absolutely free of defects. The slightest flaw spoils the effect.

"Know When to Speak."

There are times when silence is golden and times when we must speak. Herrick, in his "Caution in Council," bids every man to know when to speak, so that we may not talk at the wrong time.

"Only the Actions of the Just Smell Sweet and Blossom in the Dust."

So the old English dramatist James Shirley (1596-1666) declares in his morality play "Death's Final Conquest."

"Mind Your P's and Q's."

A reminder of other days when the alehouse was a popular resort. The saying reminds frequenters of the bar to keep close watch of their pints and quarts so that mine host might not add a few extra.

CORRECT MANNERS

SHORT LESSONS IN ETIQUETTE

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly suggest some gifts to give a man friend. L. S. J.

THERE are few gifts that it is proper for a young lady to give a gentleman. And thus suggestion of good form is undoubtedly a very wise and salutary one, for often, when a young lady lets this rule guide and control her in impulsive times of overgenerosity, she is saved most embarrassing moments afterward, when perhaps the friendship has cooled or ceased altogether and the gift exists—the mocking sign of her well-intentioned but overdone liberality. Don't lay yourself open to such bitter regrets.

Of course it is a commonplace to say that it is the spirit of the gift and not the gift that is of value. Make your gift a wise one, an inconsequential one, an inexpensive one—but a thoughtful one. Make your note accompany the gift, if say it is a birthday present, a friendly direct expression of your appreciation of the friendship.

A book is an appropriate present and much appreciated by men, for I think, as a whole, they read more than women. The kind of book published in the last two years makes especially fitting gifts for men, for the majority of these publications deal with biography and travel. Make a real effort to find just the right book.

A tie, a muffler for street or evening wear, handkerchiefs, a carton of his favorite cigarettes, a subscription to a good magazine—these, too, are suitable and proper gifts.

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Eczema, Rash and Irritations Soothed Overnight By Mentho-Sulphur

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment, or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.

HEALTH RESTORED AFTER FOUR YEARS OF INTENSE SUFFERING

"I suffered intensely from nervous indigestion for four years. My condition was so serious that my strength was exhausted and my nerves were completely shattered. During all this time I was treated by one physician after another, but continued to grow worse and weaker and more nervous in spite of the tonics they prescribed for me.

In desperation I decided to try Wincarnis and to my great delight I began to improve before I had taken half of the first bottle. I continued taking Wincarnis regularly and my weight soon increased from 139 to 142 pounds. My digestion is now perfect; I am strong and full of energy and I never suffer from my old nervousness. Wincarnis is certainly a blessing for weak or nervous women."

Monkey and Snake Fight

It Was a Losing Battle for the Cobra From the Start. Brains Count

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

We wish to tell you of the monkey and the snake fight described by a witness.

Before men arrived on earth, when all the animals were racing for supremacy, the monkey seemed to have the smallest chance. No one would have guessed that the descendants of this feeble, defenceless little brute would eventually rule the earth, killing off tigers, lions and the other huge monsters at pleasure.

We have before called your attention in this column to the fact that the monkey, or some animal like him, had the honor of contributing our proud human services as the world's rulers because he could use his brain.

That fight between the monkey and the cobra illustrates this quite clearly.

The monkey was a little monkey, with scarcely enough muscle to strangle a hen.

His little black fingernails could hurt nobody. His teeth were fit only to nibble fruit or to chatter in rage at his fellow monkeys.

This monkey had the misfortune to annoy a huge cobra.

Mr. Cobra is the most dangerous, the most formidably armed, of all living animals. He is a solid mass of muscle, gifted with lightning speed. The slightest touch of his fangs means death.

The brain of the cobra is about as big as a mustard seed. The brain of the monkey—even a small one—is several hundred times as big as the brain of the largest snake. We refer to the cerebrum, the front brain, which does the thinking.

The monkey annoyed the snake, and the snake chased him. Mr. Monkey, shrieking and chattering, rushed over the ground until he came to a rock. He stood still in front of the rock.

The snake dashed its head at him to annihilate him; the monkey jumped to one side and let the snake beat its head against the rock.

Over and over this operation was repeated, the monkey with lightning speed avoiding the dart of the snake, and the snake, with never-ending stupidity, dashing its head against the rock.

Eventually the powerful, dangerous snake was stretched out at full length, bleeding and tired out.

The monkey was not bleeding and not tired. He was extremely cheerful. He seized the snake by the neck, just back of the head, and placidly proceeded to rub its head off on the stone.

When he had rubbed the head to a pulp, incidentally destroying its primitive brain, he left the dead snake lying there, and gratefully accepted the Indian corn and sugar cane donated by the admiring humans—his relatives—who had witnessed his performance.

The Stand-Pat Mind

Nothing Can Be Until Long After It Is to This Sort

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

In imagination think back eighty-six years to the following scene:

A hillside near Philadelphia. Two "streaks of rust"—thin bars of iron fastened on top of sills of wood laid longitudinally up a grade rising 369 feet to the mile. An interested group of spectators watching a curious mechanism called the "Washington"—a seven-ton locomotive with 10 by 18-inch cylinders and a single pair of drivers four feet in diameter.

Never before had a vehicle propelled by steam puffed itself up so steep a grade. Eminent scientists assured the world it couldn't be done. They cited convincing formulas showing it was a physical impossibility.

The Washington coughed and groaned, but climbed safely to the summit. It repeated the performance many times. Its feat was widely chronicled. Yet for months learned men continued to assure the public that the reports were all a pack of lies—the thing just couldn't be.

If you apply to future travel in the air the ratio of progress already made in travel by rail, you will be wary of doubting the aeronautical prophets.

The Marvelous Balance of the Universe

A tidal wave and hurricane combined occasionally destroy thousands of lives in one small corner of the globe.

After the first excitement and horror, the first creditable outpouring of help, there should be much thankfulness in the hearts of the many millions who live on safely.

Do you ever think of the wonderful protection, the marvelous precision in celestial mechanics that guard you, as you travel through space?

In huge reservoirs, which we call oceans, the earth's waters are stored for our use. Those vast volumes of water rest on the surface of a whirling sphere traveling through space at fearful speed. The slightest derangement, the slightest lack of balance in our motion round the sun, the slightest shifting of the poles and the mountains of water miles high would sweep over the continents and wipe out—not only one small city—but the entire human race.

Our existence here requires a divine care and precision so great that our minds can but feebly grasp them. Change the temperature of your body by but a few degrees and you die. But you travel through space safely, with a freezing ocean of water about you. You travel in company with suns that throw out endless billions of degrees of heat. You are protected in a traveling hothouse, regulated exactly to suit your feeble strength and all your wants.

Did you ever see the small black nose of a dog pressed against the window of a flying express train?

Have you ever seen that dog barking at the landscape whirling by?

Have you reflected on the utter inability of that pug to realize the marvelous intelligence and power that are whirling him along as he barks and wags his tail and enjoys himself calmly?

Kind reader, you and all of us, whirling along in this magnificently conducted express train called the earth—whirling onward to a destiny worthy of our habitation—are so many poor little dogs looking out at nature's marvels and looking out with less than dog appreciation.

PREDICTS FLIVVER PLANES

PARIS, May 25.—Within five years, affirms the aviator Barbot, airplanes will be as cheap as flivvers and as easy to fly as bicycles are to ride.

This prophecy follows Barbot's recent sensational flight of fifteen minutes in an airplane furnished with a motor of only seven horsepower and without the utilization of ascending air currents.

The air jitney, says Barbot, is the logical development. Already Andre Citroen, the French Ford, is turning his attention toward popular aeronautics.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

How Was it Done?

Editor Boston American:

In all his lectures on Spiritualism, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is most careful to explain that darkness is essential for the materialization of spirits owing to the fact that the ectoplasm which comes from the medium, and which the spirits manipulate in manifesting themselves, dissolves in light.

Now, notwithstanding these emphatic assertions, Sir Arthur shows three ectoplasmic spirit photographs taken in broad daylight, one taken by a friend of his in South Africa showing a group of natives standing outside their huts in a bright sun, and by the side of one of the natives, who was supposed to possess mediumistic powers without knowing, is a materialized spirit. The other two were taken in London during the three minutes' silence at the unveiling of the cenotaph to teh dead soldiers of the war. In referring to these later pictures, Sir Arthur stated it was arranged to have several mediums in the great crowd with special instructions to pray fervently for the return of the spirits of the dead soldiers.

Now, let me ask Sir Arthur in all seriousness and with all due respect: How do you explain to the layman this apparently extraordinary contradiction and discrepancy in your lectures, and also, whether you know of any of the numerous other photographs taken during the three minutes' silence as showing the same results as the particular one shown in your lectures?

M. J. FLEMING.

Needs Wheel Chair

Editor Helping Hand:

In a town near here is a man of thirty-seven who is unable to stand as the result of paralysis and also unable to use his hands to any great extent. The wife must work at unskilled labor like cleaning and washing. In order to leave him for a day she must place food by his chair, which he manages in some way to eat during the day, but he cannot move from the position he is left in in the morning until his wife's return. If he had a wheel chair he could relieve this monotony, as could propel it by moving his arms. I wonder if someone who has a wheelchair and has no use for it would pass it along to this man, or if it is to be sold for a reasonable sum, I might be able to raise money for the same.

M. C. 2.

Also a plum-colored slip-on sweater.

You will be put in touch with M. D., a girl of fifteen, who will be very happy to get all you mention. Thank you.

Girl Needs Hammock

Editor Helping Hand:

I wonder if anybody has a couch hammock they are not using? I am a little girl of eight. I have infantile paralysis in both legs. I am just beginning to sit up. I can be out of doors in my carriage, but when I get tired I have to go in the house and lie down. If I had a hammock I could stay out all day long. My mother is willing to pay some money, but she can't afford very much.

NEWS AGAIN STAGES SCANDAL AND MELODRAMA

By Herbert Kaufman

CATACLYSMS, politics, strikes and wars yield right-of-news to scandal and melodrama.

Britain, mightiest empire on earth, selects a Premier, and China, dominant power of past ages, risks autonomy by fresh defiance of international law.

But the significance of such events is momentarily waived for a Magdalen and a murderer.

Skeletons again rattle in the Stillman closet. The "woman of mystery" at last steps to the front and quietly speaks her lines.

Pinero or Augustus Thomas couldn't have written better ones for the occasion.

Mrs. Leeds avoids hysterics and disdains the role of Leah the Forsaken.

This contained, strangely dignified twenty-five-year-old girl tells a cruelly distasteful story with the least possible display of emotion, makes no appeal for personal consideration and thereby inspires more respect for her doubtful position than sobs or recrimination might invoke. Mr. Stillman is all the more damned by her reticence.

A Plot for Zane Grey

Movie cameras never clicked on a more thrilling scene than the battle between Frank Sage and Jersey City police.

Ten minutes from Wall Street an auto bandit and his girl companioin pour lead into a cordon of bluecoats, litter the ground with killed and wounded and resist arrest until overcome by tear bombs.

Zane Grey's gun-barking imagination is challenged to produce starker drama.

The end of the episode, however, won't be so picturesque. An electric chair will close the incident.

The devotion of women passes understanding. So does the insane spirit that drives a fool outlaw to match strength with organized society.

Some day we'll find how to straighten twisted courage and set it to worthy works. Every other gangster is merely a miscast adventurer. War records tell that.

The Blind Heart of America

The more playgrounds we get the fewer jails America will build. Juvenile delinquency diminishes where youngsters are given a healthy outlet for their energy.

Environment molds good and bad citizens. Crooked paths run back to neglectful homes.

Every dollar that supports Boy Scout movements and recreation parks keeps ten out of penitentiary construction. Futures can only be as sound as the human timber which goes into their building.

Viola Paradise, crusading for child labor laws, calls the United States a blind-hearted nation. What a phrase! But what an ignoble phase of democracy provokes it!

Who Mentioned Legal Simplifications?

New York adds three hundred new laws to the code, most of which further confound present judicial confusion.

The Legislature, though, showed sense when it repealed the Lusk anti-sedition act and required public school instructors to undergo loyalty tests.

Free speech provides indicative straws for veering popular opinion. And those who teach young ideas how to shoot should give hostages for their aims. Two scores to the credit of the Smith administration.

And one for the United States Supreme Court, which sets a desirable precedent by fining a corporation $150 for indulging in a "frivolous action."

Far too many litigants now take advantage of quibbles and technicalities in the hope of exhausting the purse and patience of the other fellow.

The British restrain similar practices by imposing all costs, including counsel fees, on the loser of the suit. They still do some things better over there.

Pounds and Pence at the Helm

Stanley Baldwin succeeds Bonar Law. A business man becomes Premier. Which forecasts the probable trend of British politics.

The big problems of all people are fiscal and industrial. Academic experience and diplomatic dexterity can't cut tax and budget knots. Pounds and pence must haggle with francs and marks before peace can draw a program for Europe.

Lloyd George learned his game as Chancellor of the Exchequer. Baldwin follows in his footsteps. The question is how far he can follow.

Knowledge of American conditions gained while negotiating the debt settlement will qualify Baldwin for prompter agreement with this country on many mooted points.

The Volstead act already claims his attention.

Ambassador Geddes, returning to his post, is reported to assert that we have no right to establish regulations for foreign vessels. John Bull denies congressional authority over his fleets and intimates that the minding of other people's business, in one respect, is likely to lead to promiscuous nosiness. So will U. S. membership in the World Court.

Not a Job for the Pulpit

Dr. Woelfkin, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, viewing the bankruptcy of statesmanship, is confident that prevailing troubles may be settled through religious bodies. History will remind him that the majority of wars and wrangles have arisen from the inability of creeds to compose their own differences.

Overseas tempers and tempests are not just now of a sort to respond to disinterested advice or clerical sermons. Even papal oil can't quell the waves of hate surging over yonder.

Maxim Gorky, recovering from his recent illness, has not lost faith in the ultimate salvation of Russia. Bolshevism, to his notion, is no more than a skin disease.

His diagnosis confirms general convictions that the Soviets should be kept under political quarantine.

"No Wonder He Fell for Her"

Several thousand years ago the elders of Troy sat on a hillside and looked down upon the destruction of their beloved city and cursed Helen, responsible for it all. Then, when she appeared before them, they threw up their hands and exclaimed, "No wonder Troy fell for her."

A New York magistrate, after one look at the attractive complainand in a masher case, practically repeats their sentiments and releases an over-impressed gentleman on his own recognizance.

Gallantry is still with us. And optimism, too.

Ninety-six-year-old General Gibson, dean of West Pointers, celebrates his birthday by thanking Providence that he hasn't a toothache. May your skies be as clear at the same age.

Mrs. Allen, also ninety-six, returns from a globe-trot with her sixty-seven-year-old daughter, convinced that girls are nicer than ever. So say we all.
